American Falls 'Dewatered' by Engineers

THE FALLS CEASE TUMBLING DOWN

NIAGARA FALLS, N. Y. (UPI)—The mighty American Falls ceased falling Thursday as man, for the first time in history, diverted the waters of the Niagara River to permit a six-month scientific study.

A short time after a 600-foot cofferdam was completed a few hundred yards above the brink of the falls—diverting the water to Canada's nearby Horseshoe Falls, engineers began an inspection of the rocky riverbed at the 167-foot cataract.

Only twice before have the falls been reduced to a trickle—and both times it was the work of Mother Nature. Engineers slowed the flow to 2,000 cubic feet per second for a brief period in 1966, but this week's diversion marks the first time man has dewatered the falls.

The project, sponsored by the International Joint Commission and carried out by the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, will permit geologists to study the face of the American Falls to determine what can be done to prevent further damaging rockslides.

Only twice in recorded history—March 29, 1948, and Feb. 22, 1936—has nature "turned off" the flow of 4.5 million gallons of water that sweep over the 1,100 foot crest each minute.

On both occasions it took massive ice jams in the Niagara to halt the flow.

The Niagara Falls Chamber of Commerce, unperturbed by the damming of the world wonder, estimated that more tourists than ever would visit the area this year—drawn by the curious sight of dry falls.

June being the month for June brides, there was no shortage of newlyweds at the "honeymoon capital of the world."

If the current schedule is followed, the American Falls will remain off for six months as geologists survey the damage caused by incessant rockslides at the famed cataract that has attracted tourists from around the world.

The Corps of Engineers also hopes to determine the feasibility of removing the estimated 185,000 tons of rock that have crashed to the bottom of the falls during those slides.

As the water flow diminished, state parks police recovered the bodies of two persons who were swept to their deaths near Prospect Point. A woman's body was pulled from the water on Wednesday and a young man's body was recovered Thursday. Neither has been identified.

Several hundred persons turned out to view the work on the cofferdam that began Monday after striking construction crews agreed they would not picket the falls site.

County Legislature Acts

Work Program, Landmarks Group

By LYNN MULVANEY

KINGSTON

The county legislature moved ahead on two fronts Thursday night.

• A work release program for Ulster County prisoners, found to be successful in other parts of the state, will be inaugurated here "as soon as possible."

Unanimous approval was given the proposal.

The plan would allow men and women, now in jail, to work in the community during the day and return to confinement each night.

Jail Chaplain Clair Yohe, who strongly supported the proposal, sees it as an opportunity "to salvage men and save a little money while you are doing it." Sheriff William B. Martin and a committee would oversee the program.

• The legislature also unanimously approved the creation of a County Historic Landmarks Commission after amending the resolution submitted by the five Democratic members of the board. William West (R-12th District) asked that the powers of the commission be advisory only and that additional authority be sanctioned by the County Legislature.

The meeting, held in the County Office Building, got off to an auspicious start when Charles Culver, state veteran's counselor for the Division of Veteran's affairs, bestowed the Conspicuous Service Medal for Meritorious Service during World War II on Legislator Ernest John Gardner, (R-11th District), a resident of Boiceville.

"Don't knock us," Joseph W. Quick, a Town of Kingston assessor told County Legislature members. Story on page 3.

Prior to undertaking action of the 25 resolutions filed, William Edelmuth (D-City) reiterated his previous request for counsel to represent the Democratic members of the board. The matter has been in committee.

Abram Molyneaux, county attorney said he was "county attorney" not the attorney for the legislature and that his services were available to all board members.

Minority Leader Roger Mabie (D-7th District) said that there are times when confidences are involved and "the minority is entitled to its own counsel.

Molyneaux said he knows of no law providing for it.

Other resolutions approved by the legislature included one sponsored by Clarence Raichle (R-City) asking that there be a suspension of additional mortgage tax for the period from July 1, 1969 to June 30, 1971.

Duncan Wilson of Woodstock was appointed third deputy fire coordinator following submission of a resolution by Eugene Corey (R-9th District).

Also approved was authorization of acceptance of a bid for installation of a raised access floor and air conditioning for the data processing area and a transfer of funds for the data processing department.

Approval was also given a resolution submitted by Majority Leader Douglas Dye (R-Second District) calling for the Tax Base Committee to "investigate, review and make recommendations as to the feasibility of training assessors by the New York State Assessors Association or the Office of Town Government and to implement such training requirements if feasible and in the public interest.

A measure introduced by Chairman Peter J. Savago (R-8th Dist.) also gained approval. It called for the creation, by the state, of a six county rather than a four county planning region. Savago asked that the region be comprised of the counties which now is contained in the Mid-Hudson Inter-County Council.

One resolution went down to defeat with both sides of the aisle voting no. It was sponsored by Joseph Martorana (R-Ninth District) and called for a study of collection, treatment and disposal of refuse. Several legislators indicated they felt the proposal was redundent considering other action pending in this area.

Creation of a special committee on assessments, equalization rates and taxation was approved as was the hiring of temporary personnel in the Health Department. Six conference requests were approved and Legislator Raichle asked that thought be given to economizing in that area.

Arterial Date Stands at 1972

KINGSTON

The proposed Ulster Arterial will go into construction in 1972, despite requests from the Kingston Urban Renewal Agency for an earlier starting date.

State Senator Jay P. Rolison Jr. and Assemblyman H. Clark Bell told The Freeman that they met with officials of the State Department of Transportation in Poughkeepsie on May 24 and learned that it is a "physical impossibility" to advance the date. The highway is set for completion in 1975.

James G. Connors, urban renewal executive director has said that it was essential to the agency's redevelopment program in Broadway East to move the start of completion from 1972 to at least 1971 and hopefully to next year.

Rolison and Bell, reporting on a four-hour meeting with M. Nicholas Sinacori, district engineer for the State Department of Transportation, said they were told that the project is on schedule and that rights of way for the entire highway have been established.

The two legislators also revealed that the urban renewal agency has had final plans in its hands for the right of way in its area, from Ferry Street to Stuyvesant Street, since February of this year.

Connors said that the basic plan has not changed substantially since a public hearing held at the New York State Armory two years ago. He added that maps of the proposed right of way through the urban renewal area have been on display in the urban renewal offices for several years.

Bell said the state department feels there is a certain lack of communication between the various agencies of government in Kingston, such as the mayor's office, the Common Council and the urban renewal agency.

It was a letter from the Common Council to Bell and Rolison asking for information on the final plans for the highway in April that lead to the meeting between the legislators and the state department in May.

Bell said that with the final right of way information from the department of transportation, the urban renewal agency should now be able to proceed with redevelopment plans for Broadway East. "They told us," Bell said, "that there would be no loss of access to any parcel in the urban renewal area. There's no reason why urban renewal can't move ahead with its plans."

Connors said the problem still remained that commercial redevelopers are hesitant to build in Broadway East with their main route of access, the arterial, six years from completion.

However, Rolison and Bell, held little hope for a change in date. 'There are tremendous legal problems involved in acquisition," Rolison said. "It could take a year from now just to acquire the property for the right of way and if there are any condemnation proceedings, it could take 18 months. The easiest part of these projects is building the road."

Acquisition in the urban renewal area is completed, according to Connors. It is the area between the urban renewal area and the Town of Ulster line, where the highway will end, that has to be acquired.

Bell and Rolison promised to stay on top of the situation. "This is the number one road project in Ulster County." Bell said. "We want to make sure it stays on schedule."

Ingalsbe Rejects Tyrrell, Backs Bunting's Candidacy

KINGSTON

City Republican Chairman Ward W. Ingalsbe threw his support to mayoral candidate Clifford V. Bunting today, thereby rejecting the party's unofficial nominee, James J. Tyrrell.

Ingalsbe, at a press conference at Republican Headquarters at 12 John Street, said, in part, "My own conclusion and that of numerous others . . . is that only in the candidacy of Clifford V. Bunting can we offer the people of Kingston a truly responsible and reliable candidate for the high office of mayor.

Only Mr. Bunting, through lesser known as a public figure, is possessed of the right combination of talents, temperment, maturity and favorable traits of character required of a Republican candidate for mayor."

Ingalsbe maintained that Tyrrell's unofficial nomination on March 24 did not reflect the true feelings of the enrolled Republicans of Kingston, and for that matter, the city committee itself that nominated him over Bunting and former city chairman John R. Mayone.

Mayone said he agreed with Ingalsbe in that the committee's vote did not reflect the feelings of the party, at-large. As for Ingalsbe's motive, Mayone, an uninvited guest at this morning's press conference, said, "I am convinced that Ward is doing an act of conscience." He added that he would "have probably done the same thing under similar circumstances."

WARD W. INGALSBE

Tyrrell interpreted Ingalsbe's endorsement of his opponent as a "stop Tyrrell movement, a last ditch effort." He said he will study Ingalsbe's statement in The Freeman today and release an answer tomorrow.

Ingalsbe was asked if he would resign as chairman if Tyrrell were the winner in Tuesday's Republican primary. He answered, "I am willing to stake my political future on this statement. I don't think my chairmanship would be compatible with any other candidate."

Ingalsbe allowed that it was "a very unusual position" that he was taking. "But these are unusual times, both in the nation and in the city of Kingston."

"As Republicans, we have an obligation in this election," Ingalsbe said. "Most people want a change in Kingston. We have the issues . . . However, the electorate will not grant us the opportunity to assume the leadership it cries out for unless we, on our part, offer a candidate they can seriously expect to be possessed of the maturity, stability and responsibility to discharge the (mayor's) office."

Ingalsbe concluded, "Speaking personally, and in my official capacity as chairman of all Republicans in Kingston, (and I do not hedge on this repsonsibility) I say it is vital to the future of the Republican party that Cliff Bunting be nominated on June 17.

"I would not take this unusual step if I were not convinced of the rightness of my position. I am confident that a large number of enrolled Republicans will affirm my judgement on Primary Day."

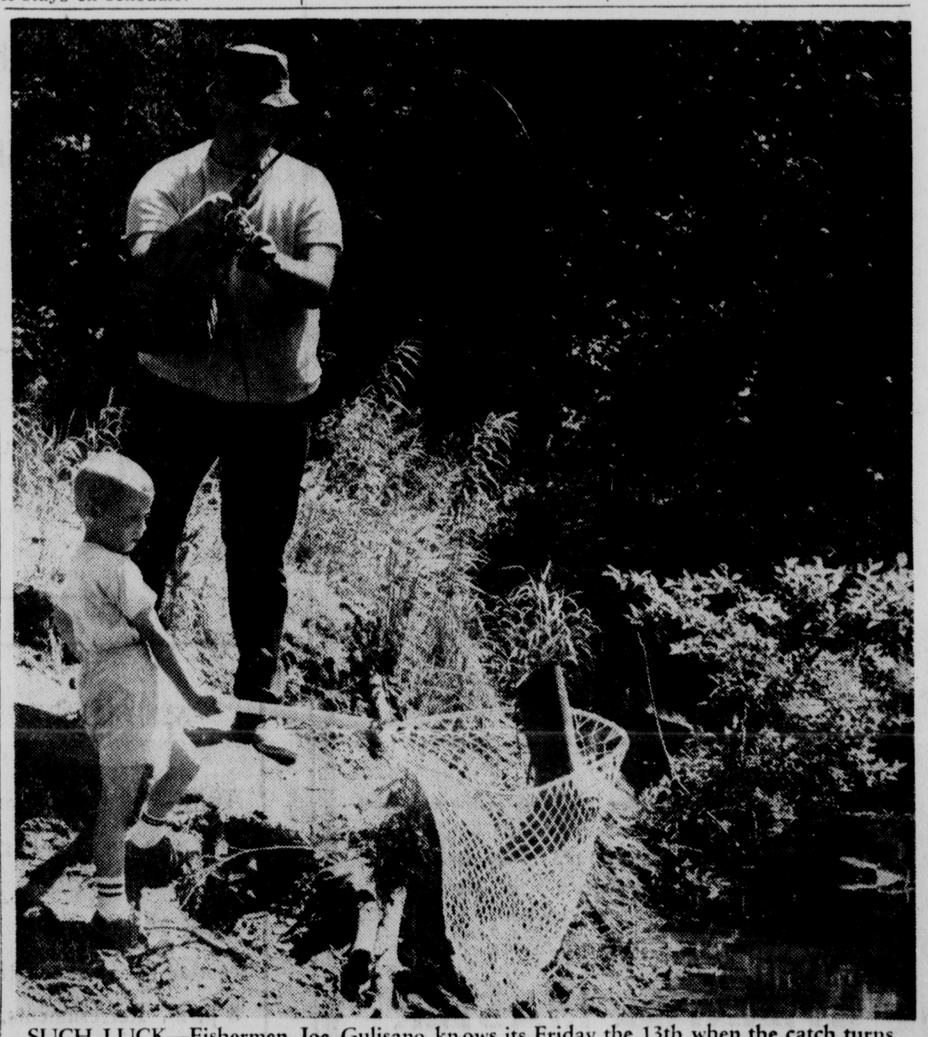

It was also disclosed at this morning's press conference that Burton C. Davis, the party's nominee for alderman-at-large had resigned as a committeeman at last night's meeting after Ingalsbe announced to the committee his intentions to publicly support Bunting.

Davis will, however, remain as the party's nominee for alderman-at-large.

Now Official: Reprieve for Rondout Post Office

KINGSTON — Postmaster Oscar V. Newkirk has received official word from the regional office of the U. S. Post Office that a reprieve has been granted the Rondout sub-station in the urban renewal area.

Originally scheduled to close June 30 because the property is slated for demolition and because of the dwindling number of customers in the area, the U. S. Post Office Department, Broadway sub-station will remain open for the time being.

The action stems from a protest made by Congressman Hamilton Fish Jr., at the request of the Ulster County Chapter of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

The congressman was told late Tuesday that the Rondout Post Office would remain open and is now awaiting a letter from the confirming that fact officially and proposing future plans.

Fish said he contacted the Post Office Department to protest the closing after Peter Rakov of Woodstock, representing the NAACP phoned Fish saying the group was opposed to the closing.

On hearing that the facility would remain open for the time being, Rakov said "The alertness and civic concern of Everett Hodge, NAACP president and the immediate responsiveness of Congressman Fish are to be commended."

Rakov said he was sure the residents of the Rondout area greatly appreciate the fact that they will continue to have complete post office services available to them in the immediate area—"not an unreasonable desire in this era of billions of dollars for space exploration, foreign aid and senseless foreign wars."

In the event of the sub-station's being demolished, Fish said the closing would be only temporary until a new facility can be located in the same area.

He also indicated that he took the action because the position outlined by the NAACP indicated that the Rondout Post Office serves the entire section of Kingston where residents have few cars and travel to the Main Post Office would be expensive and difficult.

Rakov said the NAAPA became involved Monday night at a largely attended meeting at which the Rev. John H. Gilmore and the Rev. James R. Priest said they were disturbed that the post office service currently being supplied, would no longer exist. Rakov had said that of the facility closed probably 1,000 to 1,500 persons would suffer a hardship.

The NAACP designated a committee of four to work with the congressman's office concerning the Rondout sub-station. They are the Rev. Mr. Gilmore and the Rev. Mr. Priest, Edward Ford and Herbert Schultz.

Reaches for Card, Man Slain by Policeman

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Donald Lee Oughton was a bit slow-witted and had a severe speech impediment.

Oughton, 29, always carried a card in his wallet giving his name and address in case of an emergency.

An emergency came up Thursday—and the card apparently cost Oughton his life.

The tall, lanky man, described by his neighbors as "a nice fellow," was shot to death by a policeman in a tragic series of errors apparently resulting from Oughton's inability to speak clearly.

It started with a report of a sniper shooting at passing cars on a freeway. Nothing was found, but Policemen Norman P. O'Malley and Henry Kennedy, a rookie, started cruising the area in their patrol car.

They saw Oughton running along a sidewalk, but then he suddenly slowed down and started to walk slowly, which the policemen thought suspicious. They left the patrol car and Oughton approached them.

O'Malley stood in front of Oughton and began to frisk him while Kennedy moved behind the suspect.

Oughton turned and reached for his back pocket, withdrawing a long wallet—a wallet that contained the card giving his name and address.

Kennedy, unable to see clearly in the dark, shouted "Watch it, he's got a gun."

Oughton, surprised, whirled toward Kennedy, who drew his gun and fired once, missing Oughton but hitting O'Malley on a finger.

O'Malley, believing Oughton was shooting, opened fire, hitting Oughton in the face and twice in the back and killing him.

Oughton was unarmed and no weapons were found in the vicinity.

Mrs. Dick C. Rania, Oughton's mother, said "My son doesn't own a gun and he never carried a gun." She said he was on his way home to watch wrestling on television.

Neighbor Cecil Baldivino said "everybody in the neighborhood knows him. He was a nice fellow, that guy.

"The last time I saw him was the other afternoon when he was feeding a small cat in his back yard."

Pitcock, County Crusade chairman; Albert Pioli, director and Madeline Wendrow, executive director of the cancer organization.

Episcopal Clergymen Show Concern Over 'Theatrics' In Bard Drug Raids

RHINEBECK — A letter of opinion from "the concerned Episcopal Clergymen of Dutchess County" was sent to the Dutchess County Sheriff's Department this week, protesting the "theatrics" involved in drug raids at Bard College this April.

The missive was signed by the Rev. Leslie F. Prutton of the Church of th Messiah, 47 Montgomery Street, Rhinebeck. Bard College is affiliated with the Episcopal Church.

The text read: "Dear Sheriff Quinlan:

"The signers of this letter are Episcopal clergymen in Dutchess County. Like you, we are concerned with the laws of our land and just enforcement of them. That is why we are specifically disturbed by the recent pre-dawn narcotics arrests at Bard College.

"There is no question that sale, possession and use of marijuana are against the law. (Whether these particular laws are just is, for the moment, an unsettled matter.) We are in complete agreement that it is your duty to enforce the existing law vigorously.

"But we do respectfully question the techniques used at Bard College and other places in the process of law enforcement. Is is really necessary to stage 'publicity raids?' Are the pre-dawn hours dramatically necessary? Need there be so much attendant publicity?

"We honestly believe there can be vigorous law enforcement without so much disturbance and hoopla. Far more serious offenses than smoking 'pot' are dealt with far more quietly, compassionately, and effectively by your office every day.

"We close this appeal to you with a word of support for Bard College and its president, Dr. Reamer Kline. Bard is a good, small, liberal college. It is not a hotbed of hair, hatred, and rebellion. This college has been wonderfully free of the terrible trials experienced on so many campuses. We clergymen are glad for that. We ask you, Sheriff Quinlan, and the whole Dutchess County community to help Bard College continue to do its job properly, by doing our jobs in ways which support, strengthen, and assist the young people of this college."

Six indictments by the grand jury, of the 45 persons arrested, were charged with felonies. They are Mr. and Mrs. David Crabbs, Donald Fagen, Raymond Stato, Philip Dunkelbarger, and John Jensen.

Another 26 persons will appear before Red Hook Justice Frank B. Martin this Saturday to be heard.

Eleven persons are being represented by Peter Maroulis of Poughkeepsie. Maroulis has requested that the felony indictments be transferred to County Court, since a town justice does not have the authority to judge felonies.

Dutchess Begins Its Opinions Survey

By TIM SCHUSTER

RED HOOK — Northern Dutchess Community Service began its survey this week in an attempt to discover the opinions of area residents on problems and needs.

According to one interviewer, "People seem very willing to talk. They have definite opinions on housing needs and job opportunities, for example." Informating given is strictly confidential and the name of the respondent is not recorded.

NDCS was started in April to pull together different groups interested in helping people. The groups, now called "autonomous committees," have as their special interests: transportation to health services, the migrant population, health services, education, child care, youth, senior citizens and housing.

Will Elect Council

A Council, to be elected later this month, will see that the committees make use of local resources, listed as churches, schools, town and village boards, local business and professional people, and service organizations. If adequate help is not received at this level, they will be directed to resources on the county, state or federal level.

The survey is designed to show NDCS which problems are most pressing and how the community thinks they should be solved. The volunteer interviewers are housewives and a retired businessman.

Bernard Tieger, assistant professor of sociology at Bard College, is the advisor. Anyone interested in becoming an interviewer should call Mrs. Frank Blum, John Colburn, Mrs. Sidney Mead, or Mrs. Baltus Van Kleeck.

In speaking with James Horne of Neighborhood Service Organization at the recent Astor Child Guidance Center dinner, The Freeman asked how people unskilled in polling techniques could give an accurate reflection of public sentiment.

Horne replied, "The survey questions themselves take a person's unwillingness or inability to express himself into consideration. Safeguards are built into a good questionaire, and Tieger certainly is aware of all of the ramifications of sampling public opinion."

Speaks at Meeting

Horne spoke at the first public meeting of the NDCS in Red Hook, laying the groundwork for methodology. He stressed that people who mean well should first ascertain the "actual needs instead of what they suppose the needs are" before proceeding with plans.

We asked Horne if there was really enough poverty to warrant a committee for help in the Red Hook-Milan area, which is comprised of two villages and parts of two towns.

"The poverty is not readily seen, as it would be in a city ghetto," he answered. "But there is far more than you would suspect back up in the hills, especially in the Town of Milan. This rural poverty is hidden away from all traffic, but the people are just as destitute as anyone in city slums. A high number of welfare cases in the Tivoli area could probably benefit from a good self-help program, and of course migrant workers are prevalent during the summer months to harvest the fruit crops."

Picks Wrong Spot

ELMIRA, N.Y. (UPI)—Friday the 13th could hardly prove as unlucky as Thursday the 12th for Douglas Miller.

Elmira Police Chief Bernard Demember said he was awakened by noises and found the 17-year-old youth hiding in a shower in the bathroom of the chief's home. Miller was charged with burglary.

Costly Weeds

LONDON (UPI)—The British Ministry of Defense spent $144 Thursday getting rid of three weeds.

Don't Knock Our Group... Says Assessor

KINGSTON — Joseph W. Quick, a member of the County Assessors Association, appeared before the Ulster County Legislature yesterday afternoon because the "assessors of Ulster County are deeply concerned, vexed and annoyed with those persons who have taken upon themselves to discredit the assessors of this county."

Quick said that assessors throughout the county, a well as the state, have already accepted the fact that there are inequities in assessments.

"If you cannot accept this fact," he advised "become a member of your local school board, assessment board or any other agencies in government whose function is fixing ad valorem tax rates for water, lighting, school or property."

Quick said that contrary to some of the opinions expressed recently "by various individuals in the county," I could not indict or condemn the assessors of our county. I would praise them . . ." He said he felt that there are those who want to give the public the impresseion of being a salvager "possible for their own gain."

Quick asked is consideration had been given to the preponderance of factors which contribute to the problem of inequitable assessments. "Can the assessor be criticized for the inflationary and deflationary trends of our economy which complicates the assessor's work? Can the assessor be held responsible for the inequities created by the state with its grant-in-aid to local government programs?

A Reason Why

This program alone, he said, has caused the practice of underassessing, solely to appear to be more needy of state funds in the aid programs. "This is one of the reasons the State Board of Equalization and Assessment was created, "he explained. "Was the assessor at fault or were the town boards and tax groups mandating the pactice to improve their positions?

"Can anyone dispute the fact that the various exemptions given to certain groups of people, like the veteran's groups, not only creates inequities but continues to explode these inequities to the point that the taxpayers who are not eligible are literally driven from thir homes because of the increased burden which they can no longer countained.

Saying assessors are overworked, under-paided and under-staffed, Quick offerred solutions suggesting that assessment laws be over hauled, that assessors be provided with the tools that they need for their job and that new tools be provided for effectiveness and efficiency.

"We must develop our local assessors and train them to use these tools. We must provide fractional assessment at uniform rate of full value."

Diligent Efforts

Quick said "the assessors of Ulster County deserve to be recognized for their diligent efforts made during the past few years to improve the assessing profession. He advised that relationships be improved between assessor and local governing bodies and said that concentrated effort, not criticism "is the only path that can be taken to improve this situation."

Regarding new legislation governing assessing, Quick asked if there is any value in legislating new laws which have not been seriously considered by those who recognize the need and want assistance?

"Is there any value in proposing studies which have already been completed, wasting time, effort and probably monies which could be better used elsewhere, for instance in implementing plans that may have already been studied by one of your committees?

"Where is the value in introducing legislation that will be abolished by acts created by the higher administration bodies, like the Assessment Improvement Bill or the Dominick Bill?

'Is the purpose of your study committee to duplicate effort, spending time and money on projects which have been started, studied, reported and sent to the governing bodies for enactment only to be vetoed or kept in committee because of lack of interest on the part of local government or, because it would be political suicide for those who stood up and told it like it really is?" he asked.

Two Suffer Injuries In Route 28 Mishap

KINGSTON — Two persons were injured in a two car crash on Route 28 this morning, four miles west of Kingston.

State Police from the Lake Katrine sub station reported that the accident occurred at 7:40 a.m. in front of the Jenning's Construction Company plant.

Dr. Herbert Schwartz, 59, of Ring Top Road, Kingston was reportedly travelling west on the highway when the accident occurred. Schwartz had slowed to make a left hand turn into a driveway when an auto operated by Mrs. Isabella Cervantes, 62, of RD 2, Box 355, West Hurley, which was travelling east on the four lane highway, collided with his vehicle.

Mrs. Cervantes suffered lacerations of the knee and right ankle, contusions of the body and a concussion. She was taken to Kingston Hospital by Doctor's Ambulance. Her condition late this morning was withheld pending X-rays.

Dr. Schwartz suffered minor cuts on the head. He was also taken to Kingston Hospital, treated and released.

Traffic on the highway was slowed for several minutes before the autos were removed to the shoulder of the road.

Trooper John McMickle of the Lake Katrine barracks investigated the accident.

Milton Sidewalks: Still Many Problems

By BRUCE KAUFMAN

MILTON — Marlboro Town Justice, Patrick Mataraza, still believes that sidewalk construction in the Milton area will begin shortly, despite many indications that no such action is being planned by either the town or the county, in the near future.

Martaraza told The Freeman, on Thursday, that work on the sidewalks would be undertaken by the "proper authorities" as soon as the schools close. The Marlboro Republican, who would not specify who these authorities were, made a similar statement at a meeting of the Marlboro Town Board, here, Tuesday night.

Considerable Doubt

However, despite Mataraza's assurances, there appears to be considerable doubt in the minds of several other officials involved, that such construction is contemplated.

Marlboro Town Supervisor Michael Canosa, Town Highway Superintendent Albert Troutman, and acting Ulster County Superintendent of Highways, George Fitchner have indicated that they are unaware that the project will be undertaken at this time.

Supervisor Canosa said that the town does not have a budget appropriation for the sidewalk project, but explained that the project itself has been postponed while he was exploring the possibility of getting the Ulster County Highway Department to handle it.

However, no such action is contemplated by the Highway Department at this time.

According to Acting Superintendent Fitchner, the Milton sidewalk project is not on the county schedule, nor does he anticipate that the county will undertake the project.

Canosa said that Mataraza's statement was not a Town Board issue, but rather a "personal dispute" between the justice and a local newspaper which disputed among other things, Mataraza's claim that the sidewalk construction was imminent.

Not Accurate

At the Tuesday night meeting Mataraza said that the newspaper's articles about the Milton sidewalks were not accurate and that he had proof of his statement "in black and white" that would be revealed at the proper time.

He also implied that because the matter had not been more actively pursued " the town was being hindered instead of helped in this work."

Canosa took exception to this statement. He said that the town had done considerable preliminary work on the project and worked very closely with the late County Highway Superintendent Roland Greene and now with Acting Superintendent Fitchter.

"The last time I spoke to Mr. Fitchner, he told me that he did not have any money available," Canosa said. "If there has been any hindrance it hasn't come from this Town Board."

Pays $25 Fine On Check Charge

KINGSTON — George Rochline, of RFD 2, Nevin, was fined $25 Wednesday by Town of Ulster Justice Arthur A. Reilly for cashing a fraudulent check in the amount of $411.96 at Caldor's Department Store on May 8.

A warrant for Rochline's arrest was issued by Justice Reilly on May 21 for passing a fraudulent check. Rochline was arrested at his home by BCI Investigator Fred Grunewald on June 11. He appeared before Justice Reilly later that night and paid the fine. He reportedly made full restitution.

Walter Duke, chief of security at Caldors, signed the complaint requesting Rochline's apprehension.

15 North Koreans Reported Killed as Rendezvous Fails

SEOUL, Korea (UPI)—South Korean gunboat, troops and planes captured a North Korean speedboat trying to rendezvous with a Communist spy in an hour-long gunbattle off the nation's west coast, the Korean Central Intelligence Agency said today.

"The invaders were annihilated . . ." the announcement said.

The agency said the North Korean vessel launched a rubber boat with three men aboard late Thursday night to try to pick up Kim Yong-Ku, 39, a North Korean arrested on spy charges by South Koreans May 30.

At that point, South Korean army, navy and air force units attacked. There were no reports of survivors among the 15 men aboard the North Korean boat.

Gives No Details

The agency gave no details of the battle. It said before his capture, the suspected spy had used a radio in reporting information to the Communists.

Dong-A Ilbo, South Korea's largest newspaper, said South Korean forces had advance information about the Communist vessel and were waiting for it. The Seoul troops suffered no casualties.

The intelligence agency said the 75-foot, 60-ton vessel could travel 35 knots and was equipped with four engines and armed with an 82mm gun, four 40mm guns, two 14mm antiaircraft guns, two heavy and three light machine guns, eight submachine guns, five pistols and two antitank grenades.

The gunbattle erupted near Huksan Island, 70 miles off the west coast of South Korea in the Yellow Sea.

A South Korean patrol boat spotted the Communist boat, disguised as a fishing boat, and radioed for air force support. Planes dropped flares and naval vessels opened fire, the intelligence agency said.

Speedboat Sinks

While being towed to port, the North Korean speedboat sank but was recovered, the agency said.

The North Korean boat left the North Korean port of Chinnampo on Wednesday to try to pick up the spy and return him to North Korea, the agency said.

On Aug. 21 last year, a North Korean speedboat carrying 14 commandos tried to contact another Communist agent on the island of Cheju, 55 miles off South Korea's southern coast on a similar mission.

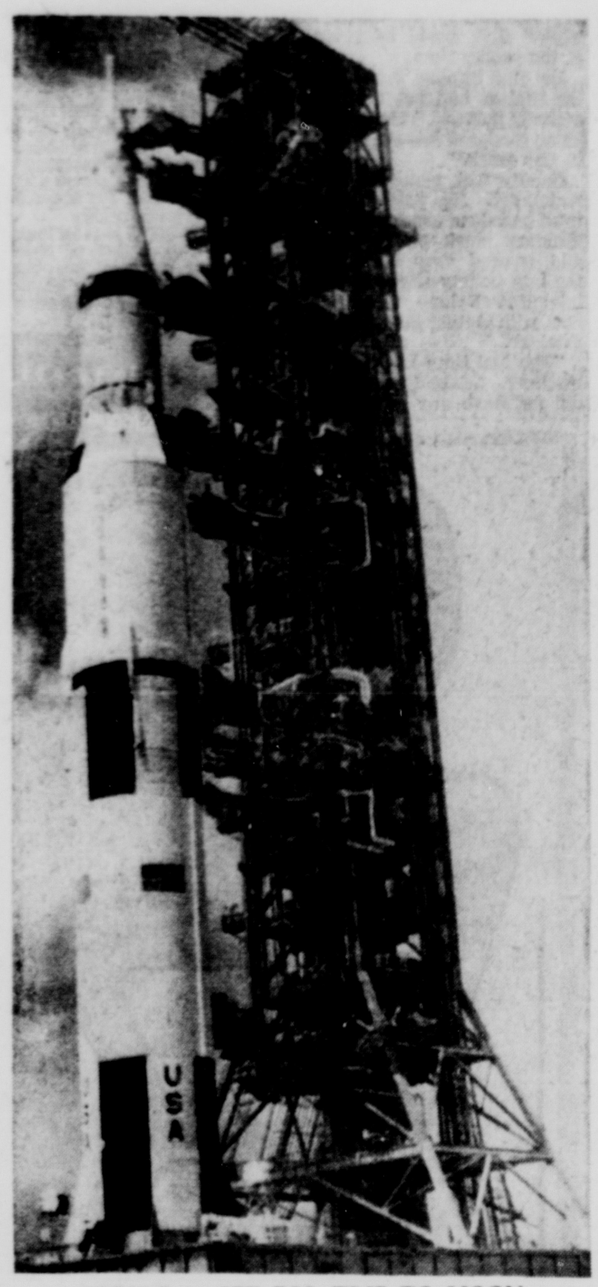

South Korean troops killed 12 of the Communist commandos and captured two of them after several hours of fighting.

Last Sunday, South Korean troops sank a rubber boat trying to land three Communist agents near Bukpvong, 115 miles east of Seoul. When the rubber craft came under attack, the mother vessel fired a shell that smashed into a house on shore and killed five members of a family.

Eight Communist agents landed at Chuminjim 40 miles north of Bukpvong March 16 and attacked a police checkpoint, killing a South Korean policeman. All eight were later killed by South Korean troops.

Green Light for July Landing... Will Astronauts Be Ready?

APOLLO 11 SET FOR TRIP TO MOON (UPI TELEPHOTO)

SPACE CENTER, Houston, Tex. (AP) — The Apollo 11 flight has a green light for a moon landing attempt in July. The question now is: Will the crew be ready?

Neil A. Armstrong, civilian commander of the flight, and his crewmates, Air Force Col. Edwin E. Aldrin Jr. and Air Force Lt. Col. Michael Collins, face a heavy training program to prepare them fully for the scheduled July 16 blast-off.

Armstrong is scheduled to be the first to set foot on the moon July 21. He is to be joined by Aldrin 27 minutes later.

Ahead of the three are hours in mission simulations, briefings, reviews and run-throughs.

They'll work for more than 12 hours on many days between now and launch in the mission simulators, familiarizing themselves with the equipment and practicing responses to possible emergencies.

"We've got a tough job getting ready," said Donald K. Slayton, chief of astronauts. "We won't need very many glitches (unexpected problems) to not be ready."

Slayton said that even a simulator "bombing out on you for two days in a row" could delay the launch.

Space officials said privately Armstrong was pushing hard to meet the launch date.

He was irritated by the slowness of some mission planners, a source said, and brought pressure for faster action.

One of the delayed blueprints was said to concern the television camera on the Apollo 11 command module, the mother ship which stays in orbit 69 miles above the moon while the lunar lander descends to the surface.

Armstrong made a formal proposal that the television camera be removed from the spaceship. His logic, a source said, was that he had received no plan for its operation and if it wasn't vital enough to have a plan, then it was unnecessary to take the camera.

"He wasn't really trying to get rid of the camera," a source said. "He was just trying to force out a plan for its use."

Armstrong got his plan in short order.

Slayton said the final decision on whether the crew is ready will rest with Armstrong. And, Slayton said, if the civilian astronaut says the crew isn't ready, "then we'll just tell them (the space program administrators) that we won't go."

Officials are concerned that the Apollo 11 fliers may have to work so hard they'll miss the final three weeks of comparative rest which flight surgeons have urged for space crews.

Dr. Charles Berry, chief of medical operations, has urged that crews have time before flights to gain back strength lost in hectic training. This is to avoid having in space tired astronauts who are more apt to fall ill. Landing and walking on the moon will be the most strenuous exercise astronauts have faced since space flight began.

In his announcement Thursday that July 16 was the target date for launching, Lt. Gen. Sam C. Phillips, Apollo space program director, was careful to leave the door open for a delay.

Gromyko Pledges Support of Soviets

CAIRO (AP) — Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko has assured President Gamal Abdel Nasser the Soviet Union won't agree to any settlement in the Middle East the Arabs won't accept, the semiofficial newspaper Al Ahram reported today.

The Soviet Minister also pledged continued support for the Arab demand for Israeli withdrawal from all territories occupied in the June 1967 war, the paper said.

Al Aham's report was the first significant report locally of Gromyko's activities since he arrived Tuesday to talk with Nasser.

Gromyko is believed to be sounding out Nasser on a package deal reportedly proposed by U.S. officials at the Big Four talks in New York and in talks with Soviet officials in Washington.

Some reports say the U.S. proposal includes territorial concessions to Israel including the Arab quarter of Jerusalem and Syria's Golan Heights. Al Ahram said any such concessions would be rejected out of hand. However, the Soviet Union and the Arabs are expected to abandon their earlier conception of a "phased settlement"—Israeli withdrawal first and then the Arabs would make concessions—and to agree to other points in the U.S. plan.

These points reportedly satisfy Israel's demand for peace and security under terms of the November 1967 U.N. resolution that is being used as a basis for a settlement.

Egyptian sources said Gromyko conferred at least twice Thursday with Moscow by telephone. The sources took this to mean his talks with the Egyptians had reached a critical stage requiring referral to the Kremlin.

Israeli political circles in Tel Aviv said their government might be prepared to accept a peace package if it included direct Arab-Israeli negotiations.

Israeli Pemier Golda Meir underlined Israel's desire for face-to-face negotiations when she said in London Thursday that the Big Four should abandon their efforts and let Arabs and Israelis work out their own agreement.

Mrs. Meir insisted the big power talks were a facade behind which the Arabs avoid the reality of having to deal directly with Israel.

FADS and Grievances

Paltz--No Threat, Just Thanks

By BRUCE KAUFMAN

NEW PALTZ

Last month, when a student request for an "open lunch period" at New Paltz High School, was turned down by the Board of Education, the students, though disappointed, did not threaten to close down the school.

Instead, they thanked the school board for their consideration of the matter and were likewise thanked by the board for their manner of presentation.

A Careful 'Request'

The open lunch proposal was not a "non-negotiable demand," but rather a carefully worked out "request" formulated by an ad hoc group at the high school called the Faculty-Administration Dialogue with Students (FADS).

FADS, which was conceived in early January has met regularly since then, was organized because the students of the high school realized that the most effective way to deal with valid grievances was through cooperative action with the faculty and administration.

"The idea was to improve communications with all parties on campus," according to Principal John Wyman, "and to make changes where they need to be through legitimate procedures."

Wyman says that the students are aware of what is going on at the colleges and unless the lines of communication are kept open the high schools could be in for the same difficulties."

The students, who were active in FADS during the past months, although pleased with the degree of cooperation achieved with the faculty and administration, have mixed feelings about the long-term effectiveness of the FADS approach to problem-solving.

Apathy Problem

Bob Hajek, who was recently elected student body president at New Paltz High School acknowledges that the greatest obstacle in the way of bringing about change is "the apathy of the students themselves" rather than in the recalcitrance of the administration.

Hajek, a junior, points out that while a considerable majority of the faculty have participated in FADS, less than 10 per cent of the students have demonstrated a similar interest.

Another student, Donna Jacobs, a graduating senior, links the apathy to dis-unity within the student body and says that while most students supported the FADS move for open lunches, very few participated.

The open lunch proposal, formulated by FADS, requested that the school board permit those students who drive to school and their passengers to be allowed to leave school grounds, with parental permission, during the 45-minute lunch period.

Special

The students cited lack of a smoking area, uninteresting lunch selections, and inadequate recreational facilities, as the basis for this request.

The proposal, presented to the school board in April, was turned down by the board at their May 9 meeting.

Much Soul-Searching

School Board President, Ashton W. Hart told the students who submitted the proposal that the decision was made "after much soul-searching on our part and because we had no available mandate from the thousand-odd parents involved."

The students accepted the board's judgment, but many were disappointed and felt that the board should have offered a more complete explanation for their refusal.

Hajek, who notes that both the faculty and the P-TA approved modified versions of the open lunch plan says, "that we asked them why the refusal was made and they wouldn't answer."

Harold Marsh, an English teacher at the high school and unofficial advisor to the students in FADS, says that he understands the students' disappointment.

Marsh says that in the past, students have been told "no" without any explanation why, but "this can no longer be done because there is a growing student awareness that just because a rule exists, does not mean that it cannot be changed."

Proud of Students

Marsh says that he is "very proud" of the way the students conducted themselves.

"The point behind the FADS committee is not what they (the students) are striving for, but how they are going about it," he says. Marsh notes that the students even consulted a lawyer before presenting their proposal to the board.

Despite the failure of the open lunch proposal, FADS has been able to come up with some solutions to the lunch-hour problem. Through FADS influence, a more diversified lunch menu has been adopted, coffee has been introduced as a beverage, and recreational activities have been established.

Hajek, who plans to continue the push for an open lunch as president next year, also intends to work for more student influence in other areas of school life. For example he, and other elected officials will work for the establishment of a student review board, to handle some aspects of student discipline.

"We are encouraged by the cooperation we received from the faculty and administration this year," Hajek says, "but if there is no response to our requests, particularly the open lunch, we will have to use other means."

Highway Employees Signed by Teamsters

SAUGERTIES

A request for certification and recognition of Teamsters Local 445 as exclusive bargaining agent for the Town of Saugerties Highway Department employes was made this week in a letter to Supervisor A. Michael Schovel and members of the Town Board.

Theodore G. Daley, secretary-treasurer of Local 445, International Brotherhood of Teamsters announced that Donald MacCollam, local business agent and organizer for the union had forwarded a formal request to the supervisor and Town Board.

Daley stressed that almost all of the eligible employes in the Town Highway Department have become members of Local 445 and that under the provisions of the State Public Employees Fair Employment Act, Local 445 is justified in requesting exclusive bargaining rights on behalf of the highway workers. There are 11 eligible workers in the department.

In order that the matter might be fully discussed by all concerned, and to fully document Local 445's claim to both majority status and exclusive bargaiing rights, the Teamster official has requested a meeting between representatives of Local 445, Supervisor Schovel, and the other members of the Saugerties Town Board. Daley went on to say that at present the town highway employes in Saugerties are not being represented by any authorized bargaining agent and that under the terms of the recently enacted New York State Taylor Law such workers are entitled to full union representation in any contract negotiations with the Town of Saugerties.

Daley concluded by saying, "The highway employes in the Town of Saugerties have clearly indicated their overwhelming desire to become affiliated with, and represented by Teamsters Local 445, and I sincerely feel that there should be no delay on the part of the town in granting full recognition to Local 445 as their exclusive bargaining agent."

Attack on Dr. Arnold: Pair of Objections

SAUGERTIES

Objections were voiced from two quarters today on what was described as "a personal attack" against Saugerties Superintendent of Schools Dr. Dexter O. Arnold in a news release by Saugerties Teachers Association this week.

The Teachers Association in a report of its Monday night meeting expressed a "vote of no confidence" in the superintendent of schools, and that the measure was approved by a 5 to 1 margin.

David S. Cunningham, administrative assistant at the centralized system in a statement said:

"During the 31 years I have worked in the Saugerties School System, first as a classroom teacher, and more recently as administrator, I have worked under two fine superintendents, Grant D. Morse and Dexter O. Arnold. Both men have been dedicated in their efforts to develop a good educational program and a top-notch school system.

"Both have been interested in obtaining the best teachers possible, and both have done their best to promote high salary standards and good working conditions for teachers.

"I have, until lately, been proud of my profession, feeling that I was one of a group of dedicated people, working for the best interests of children in our community.

"Grant Morse was often subjected to criticism by the public, and to some degree by certain of his faculty members, but Grant Morse never was subjected to the vindictive, mass attack via the news media by faceless 'professional advancement committees' and nameless groups of 'Saugerties Teachers.'

"The personal attack on Dr. Arnold I consider unethical, unjustified, and despicable. It is unworthy of what we once pridefully called a profession.

"I call on those who still have the pride, to assert themselves to the end that the less responsible members of our calling be restrained from character assassination, and similar vicious and destructive efforts."

William R. Hayes, assistant principal at Saugerties High School in his statement spoke for the principals and administrators of the system in which he said they took exception to the statements released to the news media in which a personal attack was made against Dr. Arnold.

The statement continues:

"Many of the principals and other administrators are members of Saugerties Teachers Association. As members we were not informed of the meeting held Monday night. We are not aware of the number who attended. It has not been established how many members of the teaching staff are represented by the reference to the vote indicated in the news release.

"Therefore, we wish the public to be informed that as professional educators, we support the superintendent of schools and Board of Education in their endeavors to maintain educational standards in keeping with reasonable tax burdens and without sacrifice of quality in education."

Concessions for Thieu

There were no surprises at Midway, and at least one disappointment, President Nixon, as expected, announced the withdrawal of a token number of U.S. troops, then he yielded to President Thieu's insistence that there be no coalition government of South Vietnamese and presumably Communists before the country's election. This latter means, barring a change not now contemplated in the voting time, that we are pledging our support of the Thieu regime until 1971.

This is the really disturbing factor of Midway. Giving President Thieu his own way could mean two more years of war, at least, unless there is a drastic moderation in his views. He seems determined to fight the National Liberation Front and North Vietnam right down to the last American. Since a coalition government seems likely anyway in the 1971 election, what's wrong with having one now if it can bring about the end of the war? Surely, Mr. Nixon is not harking back to the Johnson Administration and fighting the noble fight to halt communism. In the final analysis, the South Vietnamese, in 1971, will choose the kind of government they want, and it could reek with Communists.

When Mr. Nixon says, as he did at Midway, that no action will be taken (by the U.S.) which endangers the right of self-determination for the people of South Vietnam that can only mean that Communists will be allowed in the Saigon government, if that's what the South Vietnamese want.

Why should we put such great stress on the leadership of President Thieu? He is but a transitory figure, the leader of one of eight or nine Saigon governments since we began fighting for that country. The preservation of him and his government are not nearly as important as finding a formula for peace. His interest has not been for peace as much as self-perpetuation.

While Mr. Thieu desires a military victory, the American people no longer are interested in such. They want out, and they won't want the Saigon tail wagging the dog. In truth, Midway accomplished nothing toward getting Paris off dead center.

Mr. Nixon's withdrawal of troops still leaves more than a half-million men in Vietnam, which doesn't change the ball game much. It does constitute, though, a welcome reversal after all these years of everlastingly pouring more men into the Vietnam funnel. We began 20 years ago sending "military advisers" over there. In no time this force was swelled to about 15,000 men. Then Lyndon Johnson got in the act and the rest is history. When he left office, the total stood at around 542,000. The President makes no prediction on further reduction, since Sunday's action does not represent a lessening of the intensity of the war, but a real gamble. Battle tested Americans will be replaced by South Vietnamese of dubious fighting qualities to oppose an enemy who is well-trained in, and dedicated to, the art of warfare.

Tours of the U.S. frigate Constellation will be part of the festivities in connection with Flag Day, June 14. Proceeds will go for a fund to restore the ship, launched in Baltimore in 1797 as the first ship of the U.S. Navy. It is now docked in Baltimore harbor.

There is something significant in the fact that 16 universities have refused meeting space to the Students for a Democratic Society. The group, which has been responsible for much of the campus disorder, postponed meetings for a week while it looked for a haven. No college that wants to avoid disorders will or should have them.

"What Percentage of 500,000 Is 25,000?"

David Lawrence Says

Troop Replacement Plan No Sudden Development

WASHINGTON — The word "withdrawal" has been in the headlines in the last few days as the news reports told of the decision announced by President Nixon and President Thieu to arrange for the sending of 25,000 American troops back home from Vietnam. But, Mr. Thieu made a good point in his news conference on his return to Saigon when he said the term "withdrawal" is not the right one to use and that "replacement" would be the correct word. He might have gone further by declaring that in truth the South Vietnamese army is being "restrengthened."

For the idea of a build-up of South Vietnam's military power has not been a sudden development. This is borne out by a significant UPI dispatch on Tuesday from Washington, which aid:

"The U.S. plans to spend more than 1,000 dollars per soldier next year equipping the South Vietnames army—and if it pays off, there may be more U.S. troop withdrawals.

"U.S. support forces including jet fighters, helicopters, supply and transportation outfits, meanwhile, would remain behind to assist the South Vietnames as they take over the fighting."

Secretary of Defense Laird, moreover, has revised the budget requests so that, if Congress approves, 1.25 billion dollars will be available for equipping the South Vietnamese during the year beginning July 1. He says the money will be spent for "troop carriers, trucks, trailers, radios, night-vision devices, and so forth, as well as guns and ammunition."

The importance of this will not be lost on the North Vietnamese. They will see the setting up in South Vietnam of a well-equipped military force of more than 1,000,000 men, armed and supported by funds from the United States.

The fact is that the troop-replacement plan has been under discussion for many weeks in the National Security Council here. The process is called "de-Americanization" by many people in the sense that fewer and fewer American forces will be in Vietnam. But the combined military effort of South Vietnam and its allies will continue to be backed up by a United States military force and an adequate supply of funds and equipment. There will be no lessening of the determination of America to secure for the South Vietnamese people free elections under international supervision.

The really important change in the situation is the recognition by President Thieu that it has become necessary to make a sizable troop replacement in order to assist President Nixon in dealing with American public opinion. There will, however, be no massive withdrawals by the United States which would endanger South Vietnam.

President Thieu and President Nixon not only got along well together at Midway but understood each other's position. There is a desire on the port af the South Vietnamese president to cooperate in every way toward the effectuation of the plan that would restrengthen the military force of South Vietnam. The word "replacement" may be disputed by some who will say that the South Vietnamese are not as effective on the battlefield as American roops, but there are other observers who feel that, in the type of war being waged, South Vietnam can fight it out with North Vietnam and maintain at least a stalemate for a long time.

The constructive results of Mr. Nixon's conference with the head of the government of South Vietnam are recognized in Southeast Asia. For a while, there was a fear that some kind of discord had developed and that the United States would find itself in difficulties with its own ally. Such a danger now seems to have ben removed, and the program calls for steady replacements of American troops over the next year or two.

In the long run, it will become evident to the North Vietnames that South Vietnam still will receive substantial aid in a financial and military way from the United States. As it become clear that a "takeover" by North Vietnam will not be tolerated by President Nixon, the communists may decide that, after all, some kind of settlement in Paris might be better than to carry on hostilities indefinitely.

The Gallup Poll

Nixon Maintains Popularity

PRINCETON, N. J.—President Nixon has maintained a high level of popularity with all age groups, including voters in their twenties who frequently are the first to show a change in attitudes.

In the latest nationwide survey, 65 per cent of all adults 21 and older said they approve of the way Nixon is handling his job. Among adults between 21 and 29, the approval figure is slightly higher, 68 per cent.

President Nixon's showing among young adults is impressive inasmuch as voters in their twenties traditionally tend to be more Democratic in their political allegiance than older persons.

Scores Well With Students

President Nixon also scores well among college students even though most students currently describe their political philosophy as left of center. A nationwide Gallup survey on 55 campuses in May showed 57 per cent of students expressing approval of Nixon's performance.

To determine the views of the nations' adults, the following question was put to a sample of 1,503 persons in a survey conducted May 16 through 20:

Do you approve or disapprove of the way Nixon is handling his job as President?

Here are the latest results and the trend for all adults:

	Approve %	Disapprove %	No Opin. %
LATEST ...	65	12	23
Early May .	64	14	22
Late April .	61	11	28
Early April	63	10	27
Late March	65	9	26
Late Feb. ..	61	6	33
Late Jan. ..	59	5	36

The results of the latest survey by age groups are as follows:

	Approve %	Disapprove %	No Opin. %
21-29 years .	68	12	20
30-49 years .	65	11	24
50 and older	64	12	24

The same question asked of adults was put to 1,030 college students in the May college survey. Here are the results for the total sample and by political affiliation:

College Students

	Approve %	Disapprove %	No Opin. %
Total sample	57	27	16
Republicans	82	9	9
Democrats .	48	36	16
Independents	52	30	18

In reading the above percentages, it is helpful to bear in mind that of every hundred students, 23 describe themselves as Republicans, 33 as Democrats and 44 as Independents, with a large proportion of the last group leaning to the left of center.

Chamber of Commerce

Editor, The Freeman

The Chamber of Commerce is grateful for your very complete coverage of the annual dinner meeting in your Wednesday evening, June 11, edition.

Because of the specificity of the targets I outlined and the importance that they be properly understood, I will appreciate your correcting two statements in your article. You indicate that I would like to see "Project STEP increased by 50% to $38,000." I cannot deny that such an increase would be beneficial, but my target is to increase operating income (other than project STEP) by 50% to $38,000.

Secondly, regarding better communications to the public, you indicate that I called for "at least one press conference a week." Specifically, I stated that we will target for one press release per week. We have considered the possibility of occasional press conferences in addition; however, this was not discussed at the meeting.

I am looking forward to your support during the next year and hope that our organizations can be mutually beneficial.

Very truly yours,
D. M. KINTNER.

Drew Pearson Says

Justice Department Matches Wits With Senator Dodd

NIXON AT MIDWAY

Drew Pearson and Jack Anderson, in reporting the details that led up to the Midway meeting, accurately anticipated exactly what happened. On May 27, they quoted President Nixon's closed-door comment to Congressional leaders that he intended to withdraw American troops from Vietnam, but he wanted the suggestion to come from President Thieu.

On the eve of the meeting Pearson and Anderson wrote that a troop withdrawal agreement had been reached in advance and would be announced at the meeting as evidence of accomplishment. This is exactly what happened.

WASHINGTON — Connecticut's embattled Senator Tom Dodd is playing a subtle game with the Justice Department to keep out of jail.

As a member of the Senate Judiciary Committee, he has a powerful voice on matters affecting the Justice Department .The Committee is split ideologically, with eight conservatives and eight liberals, not counting Dodd. This gives him the swing vote on controversial legislation and appointments.

He has made it clear that he can hardly be expected to support the Justice Department if it is going to indict him for income tax evasion.

Indeed, Dodd has let it be known that his votes on other key issues will be determined by the Nixon administration's handling of his tax case. All the polls indicate, for example, that the Senate is divided evenly over the controversial Anti-Ballistic Missile system. As an outspoken hawk, he would be expected to favor the ABM system.

He has served notice on the Nixon administration, however, that he hasn't made up his mind how he'll vote. Hints have been dropped that favorable word on his tax case would help him make up his mind.

Attorney General John Mitchell has demonstrated, meanwhile, that he knows how to play this backstage game. He used the FBI to dig up derogatory information on ex-Justice Abe Fortas, then took the information to Chief Justice Earl Warren. Thus pressure was brought on Fortas to resign, creating another Supreme Court vacancy for President Nixon to fill.

With the same cold calculation, Mitchell has turned the tables on Dodd and has let him know that no action will betaken on his case until after the ABM vote. This leaves an implied threat that if he votes wrong he might be prosecuted.

The Nixon administration, apparently, is determined to win the Senate showdown over the ABM, which will be the President's first big show of strength. Several Senators have complained privately of arm twisting. Sen. James Pearson, the Kansas Republican, has had his arm twisted so hard that he has warned Nixon administration leaders that he is going to be around until 1972 and is not going to yield to pressure.

Senate liberals were told, for example, that the antipoverty program would be held up until after the ABM vote. The implication was that their pet antipoverty projects would depend upon their ABM votes.

Blind Justice

Meanwhile, the Justice Department hasn't even bothered to follow up charges that Dodd violated half a dozen federal laws governing conflicts of interest. The Senate Ethics Committee justified its own failure to investigate these charges by explaining they were matters for the Justice Department to consider.

Only the tax case is ready for prosecution, because this was developed independently by the Internal Revenue Service. It is up to the Justice Department, however, whether or not to prosecute.

As we reported last December, Internal Revenue has recommended that Dodd be indicted for income tax evasion. Treasury agents spent more than a year unraveling his tangled finances. They traced every cent that went into his multiple bank accounts and discovered a secret bank account that we had missed in the Bahamas.

The agents interviewed almost everyone who had contributed to Dodd's fund-raising affairs. Contrary to Dodd's claim, most understood their contributions were to be used in his political campaign, not for his personal enrichment.

The agents found what they considered to be evidence of criminal violations. Their findings were reviewed by the Boston office, which concurred in the recommendation that he be prosecuted.

Now the Justice Department is playing cat-and-mouse with Dodd. More important than the Dodd case, however, is the growing evidence that the Nixon administration is manipulating the law-enforcement machinery for political purposes.

Note: The New York Times has sugested that the Nixon administration is holding up action against Dodd until he is renominated for the Senate.

Quoting unnamed sources the Times reported: "These politicians said it would be obviously too much to expect the Nixon administration to do anything to hurt Mr. Dodd's chances of renomination when he may be the easiest candidate to beat."

USA—Good or Bad Neighbor?

President Nixon will have a chance personally to improve the very sour relations between his administration and Latin America this week when he receives President Carlos Lleras Restrepo of Colombia.

President Lleras is a competent, fair-minded executive who two years ago received Chief Justice Earl Warren, a nonpolitician, with enthusiasm and warmth, without a single anti-American shout coming from anyone in the crowd. Warren did a great service by this goodwill tour of several South American countries and even though Rep. H. R. Gross, Iowa Republican, blasted him for receiving State Department expense money, President Nixon out to prevail on Warren to take more trips of this kind.

President Lleras, like most Latin Presidents, has economic problems. But he has been solving them. He has also used the medium of television to explain his policies to the Colombian people. In this respect, he and Nixon will have a lot in common.

Unfortunately, the neighbors of the USA, both North and South, have a rather sour taste regarding the Nixon administration. The efforts of Secretary of Commerce Maurice Stans to erect import quotas, in effect tariff barriers, have left a bad impression.

In Canada, people are getting restless over Nixon's failure to accept an invitation to go to the border for the tenth anniversary of the St. Lawrence Seaway this month to rededicate the principle of Canadian-U.S. cooperation.

Tackles Supreme Court

Senator Dodd will deliver a blast against the Supreme Court on Thursday for turning down his petition for certiorari in the Pearson-Anderson suit.

The Supreme Court on Monday denied Dodd's appeal from a decision of the U.S. Court of Appeals which went against him when he sued Drew Pearson and Jack Anderson for unauthorized use of his Senate papers.

Dodd has asked acting Democratic Leader, Sen. Edward Kennedy, for time on Thursday to blast the Supreme Court, and one hour has been alloted to him. His contention is that the Supreme Court acted with undue haste. Dodd has filed his petition for certiorari immediately after Nixon appointed Warren E. Burger as Chief Justice, and it was reported that Dodd was counting on Burger to help rule in his favor.

John Donovan, attorney for Pearson and Anderson, waived filing an answer to Dodd's petition, thus avoiding the 30-day delay given to respondents for a reply. This was why the Court acted with what Dodd claims undue speed.

Attorneys familiar with Supreme Court practice point out that the Court tries to act speedily on petitions for certiorari when neither answers nor complex problems are involved. Chief Justice Earl Warren excused himself from participating in the denial of Dodd's petition, presumably because he is an old friend of Pearson's.

The Court of Appeals ruling against Dodd was unanimous. Chief Justice Burger, in a somewhat similar case involving the documents of Liberty Lobby, had written an opinion in favor of Pearson and Anderson and their right to use Liberty Lobby documents.

Jim Bishop: Reporter

My friends know me as a once-in-a-while gambler. If I am not near a track or a casino, I feel no desire to bet on anything. Should I be in the vicinity of such action, an excitement climbs my chest and I want to risk a few bob on horses, dice or spinning wheels. To my way of thinking, it corresponds to playing the stock market with this difference: I get an instantaneous response to my bet.

The reason I mention this is that my wife and I are enroute to King's Inn on Grand Bahama Island, and the hotel is across the street from El Casino. It is three miles from the casino at the Lucayan Beach Hotel, where your money flies in a blaze of Brussels drapes, deep pile rugs, solicitous croupiers and free drinks.

My Kelly and I have done this before, and sometimes we win and at others, we blow a few hundred. Mrs. B. is what is called an hysterical gambler. She feels the fever to bet, but the moment her two dollars is on the table, the color drains, the heart rate steps up, the eyeballs stare with fright and the palms of her hands look as though they just came out of the kitchen sink.

If she wins, she displays her snowy teeth in a big smile and she rattles the chips between two hands. Her main problem is that she thinks she understands slot machines. No one does. Years ago, at The Sands, she played a one-arm bandit all morning. When I picked her up for lunch, the palm of her right hand was black with metal shavings. She had the gall to ask a security policeman not to permit anyone to play "my" machine until she returned, "because, you see," she said, "all those quarters in there are mine and this thing is ready to flip its tray."

On another occasion, we played roulette at Nassau. I gave her $40 in chips and she made no bet. Kelly had a notebook and a pencil. She marked down every winning number and color for a half hour. Timidly, she suddenly pushed all her chips on red.

The wheel spun in one direction, the white ball rode high on the rail on an opposite course. Her face was the color of a marble headstone. The pill descended toward its fate, and bounced from numbered slot to numbered slot. It stopped forever on a black number.

Kelly pressed a tired hand across her forehead, watched the croupier take her $40, and whispered to me: "I think I'm going to be sick." "Not here," I whispered. "Hold it until we get back to our room and we can be sick together. What the hell made you put the whole pile on red?"

Brace yourself. "Because," she whimpered, "I kept track of that ball and it came up red four times in a row." Don't ask me to explain the logic. Over the long years, nobody can be a true winner. If you are lucky, you can be a now-and-then winner. Keep the pile and spend it. Go back months later and never bet more than an amount you will not miss.

One night at Lucaya, she went to bed early. I remained, and won $800 playing the roulette wheel on the numbers from 31 to 36. I went up to our room, and, as she slept, cascaded all the ten dollar bills on her face. "Half for you," I said. "Half for me."

She's a slow awakener. I never saw anybody pop up so fast, counting. Across the nation, race track owners have asked me to present the trophy to the winner of the feature race. I was flattered to oblige.

May I tell you something — cross my heart? I have done this from Monmouth in New Jersey to Tijuana, Mexico and I have never once had a dollar on the horse that won the race. Not once. So I smile for the camera, and jam the cup between the horse's teeth.

In the Seminole Handicap at Hialeah, I was on a coast-to-coast broadcast with Tommy Roberts and he asked me who I liked. My face went soggy. I had forgotten to study that race. "I don't like the favorite," I said boldly. Roberts stared at me through his microphone.

"You't don't like Admiral Vic?" he said incredulously. I now knew the name of one horse. "Nope," I said. "This is not his kind of day." "Then," he said, "what do you like?" I swallowed hard. "The outsider," I said firmly. "What outsider?" Roberts said. "The 'way out outsider," I said.

"Top Gallant?" he said. "He's around sixty-to-one on the board." "I love Top Gallant," I said firmly, and got off the air. Top Gallant finished in a dead heat with Admiral Vic and paid 57-to-1.

The following day I was in Boston, and the editor of the Record-American, Eddie Holland, phoned me at the hotel. "Who do you like in the fourth tomorrow," he said grimly, and don't tell me you don't have information because I heard the broadcast."

"Stick to me," I said, "and you'll be in rhinestones." . . .

Figures Show Pesticides Are Found in Fish

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Figures showing how badly fish in United States' rivers and lakes are carrying pesticides have been put into the Congressional Record by Sen. Gaylord Nelson, D-Wis.

He said a two-year national pesticide study by the U. S. Bureau of Sports Fisheries and Wildlife shows DDT in 584 of the 590 samples of fish from 45 rivers and lakes. The Food and Drug Administration sets five parts per million as a limit guideline in fish. Dieldrin concentration is set at three-tenths part per million as a limit guideline.

The DDT concentrations in the study ranged upward to these highest figures (all figures rounded to one decimal, representing parts per million), that included:

Hudson River—11.5 in large mouth bass, 14.4 in goldfish.

Delaware River—9.8 in white sucker, 6.6 in brown bullheads, 45.3 white perch.

Lake Ontario — 7.9 in yellow perch, 11.8 in white perch, 7.3 rock bass.

The Dieldrin concentrations in the study ranged upward to these highest samplings (all representing parts per million), including:

Hudson River—.35 in goldfish.

Delaware River—.35 in white sucker, .39 in brown bullheads, 1.24 in white perch.

Lake Ontario — .5 in white perch.

Patroon Island Span to Open During August

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI) —Governor Rockefeller said Thursday the first of three new bridges over the Hudson River will be in service by mid-summer.

The new Patroon Island bridge is slated to open sometime in August.

Built as part of Interstate Route 90, the $12 million project will provide a four-level interchange between I-90 (Albany Northside Route), the Albany Riverfront Route (I-787) and Albany Streets.

The new six lane bridge will become operational upon completion of a temporary access and exit ramps in Albany at Broadway, between Mohawk and Erie Streets.

The work is being done under a separate contract for $289,000.

Rockefeller noted that the Patroon Island bridge is a totally new crossing and will provide additional capacity for traffic between Albany and Rensselaer.

Two other bridges under construction will replace existing bridges. They are the eight-lane South Mall arterial bridge which will replace the Dunn Memorial Bridge and a four lane bridge between Watervliet and Troy, replacing the Congress Street Bridge.

Tynan was rushed to Vassar Brothers Hospital by the Arlington Fire Department Ambulance service. He was pronounced dead on arrival at the hospital.

Napanoch Man Held by Police On Rape Attempt

ELLENVILLE

A 26-year-old Napanoch camp worker is being held in Ulster County Jail today following his arrest Thursday night on charges of attempted rape involving a 61-year-old Napanoch woman.

State police from the Ellenvile barracks reported that Laverne Thomas, a worker at Camp Ravtab, allegedly assaulted the unidentified woman while she was fishing at Honk Lake, Napanoch at approximatly 9 o'clock last night.

According to witnesses, the 26-year-old grabbed the woman and attempted to remove her clothes. He was subdued by the woman's male companion and other witnesses who were at the scene.

Thomas who gave his address as the Palace Hotel in New York City, was taken into custody today and held at the Ellenville Barracks until his arrest by Senior BCI Investigator M. J. Mahoney.

Thomas was arraigned before Town of Rochester Justice Abram Smith on charge of attempted rape. He waived preliminary hearing and was remanded to the Ulster County Jail in lieu of $5,000 bail.

Mystery Plane Tries Bombing Of Missile Site

VAN NUYS, Calif. (UPI)—An unidentified light plane tried to bomb a U.S. Army Nike missile site Thursday night but the homemade firebomb fell wide of its target.

The single-engine craft with a red tail released the bomb about 250 feet over the base. It fell into a ditch just outside the fence. Authorities let the resulting small fire burn itself out.

John MacWhirter, who saw the bombing run just before sunset, said the cannister tumbled out of the airplane end over end, leaving a trail of black smoke. It exploded in a puff of smoke and a ring of fire when it hit.

Authorities said the device consisted of a two-pound coffee can containing a gold paint spray aerosol can surrounded with paper soaked with gasoline. The intent of the maker apparently was that the heat of the fire would explode the aerosol can.

Police launched a search of all airports around this Los Angeles suburb but reported no success early today. The plane had a high wing with white fuselage and red tail.

Pair of Injuries, Two Summonses In Auto Mishaps

KINGSTON

Two minor accidents were investigated early this morning by State Police from the Lake Katrine sub station.

At 2:30 a.m. police report that an auto operated by Ross P. Melville, 36, of Ulster Landing Road hit a "keep right" sign on Route 9W, south of Route 209, in the Town of Ulster.

Melville was reportedly travelling north on the highway when his auto struck the sign located on the center mall opposite the Caldor shopping center.

Melville suffered multiple lacerations of the face and contusions of the body. His condition was listed as "fair" at Kingston Hospital this morning.

Melville was issue a summons for failure to keep to the right.

About twenty minutes earlier, Trooper Roy Martinussen investigated a one car crash on Route 209 in the Town of Ulster.

Donald Rexford, 25, of Railroad Ave., Canton was reportedly traveling west in the eastbound lane of the highway when the accident occurred. Rexford's auto went out of control, swerved over to the westbound lane and overturned.

Rexford, who received minor scratches on the back, was issued a summons for driving in the wrong lane.

It has been estimated that four-fifths of the earth's animals live in the sea.

Rondout Valley United Methodist Church was the setting of the wedding of Miss Lillian Dorraine Bogart, daughter of Mr and Mrs. Oliver Bogart, Stone Ridge, and Kenneth Charles Canham, son of Kenneth G. Canham, Dedham, Mass., and the late Margaret Cahham, on Sunday, June 1. The Rev. R. W. Randall officiated at the double ring ceremony.

Linda Larsen, organist, Stone Ridge, accompanied Mrs. Earl Osterhoudt who sang traditional wedding selections. Arrangements of palms, white gladioli and carnations decorated the altar and white satin bows marked the family pews.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride selected a scalloped Chantilly lace chapel gown, fashioned with a natural satin waist sash. Ruffles encircled the sccop neckline and full-length sleeves. Her headpiece was a pearled lace petal cap, framed with English silk illusion veiling, and she carried a nosegay of white rosebuds and carnations, accented with white bows and streamers.

Mrs. David Nordquist of Honesdale, Pa., served as matron of honor for her sister. She wore an empire skimmer in pink organza over taffeta, styled with an organza ruffle on the high neckline, and long fitted sleeves. Rose satin covered buttons embellished the cuffs and back of the bodice. The gown also featured a rose satin colored highrise belt and bow sash. Her headpiece was a rose colored forward flower with a net snood and ballerina length veil and she carried a white and pink daisy nosegay with matching bows and streamers.

Attendants were Janice Cronk, Albany; Mrs. David Wellenstein, Richfield Springs; and Kathy Canham, sister of the bridegroom, Dedham, Mass. Their gowns were fashioned similarly to that of the honor attendant's but they wore pink headpieces and carried pink daisy nosegays with matching bows and streamers.

Paul Canham, Dedham, Mass., was best man for his brother. Ushers were Joseph McGovern, Troy; Robert Girard, Lowell, Mass.; and Oliver E. Bogart, brother of the bride, Stone Ridge.

After the wedding ceremony a reception for 145 guests was held at the American Legion Hall, Stone Ridge.

For her wedding journey to San Juan, Puerto Rico, St. Thomas, and the Virgin Islands, the bride wore a beige linen coat and dress ensemble with pink accessories and pink cymbidium corsage.

Mr. and Mrs. Bogart entertained Saturday evening in their daughter's honor at a pre-rehearsal buffet. Guests who attended included Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth G. Canham, Richard, David, Paul and Kathy Canham; Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Canham; Mrs. and Mrs. Harry Dixon; Mr. and Mrs. E.B. Allabough; and Mr. and Mrs. R. Keith, Dedham, Mass; Miss Janice Cronk and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Girard of Albany; Mrs. David Wellenstein of Richfield Springs; Joe McGovern of Troy; Mrs. David Nordquist and Children of Honesdale, Pa., Miss Linda Larsen, Kenneth Canham, Lillian Bogart and Oliver Bogart.

The bride is a 1965 graduate of Rondout Valley Central High School, and a 1968 graduate of Albany Medical Center, School of Nursing.

Canham is an alumnus of Dedham High School, Massachusetts, Class of 1963. He received his Bachelor of Science and Masters degree from Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute, Troy. He is now associated with Uni Royal Chemical Company, Naugatuck, Conn., as a systems analyist.

Mr. and Mrs. Canham will make their home in Naugatuck, Conn.

The gown was trimmed with lace, seed pearls and crystals, and was appliqued at the neckline, bodice and cuffs. Her headpiece was a Dior bow of silk organza which secured her fingertip-length French silk illusion veil.

Miss Arlene Shorr of Millers Lane, Kingston, was maid of honor. She wore an empire, floor-length gown of yellow chiffon, styled with long sleeves and a white shirtwaist bodice. She carried a nosegay, Victorian style, of pink daisies, pink miniature carnations, and stephanotis.

Her camelot cap was trimmed with matching Venise lace and held her tiered, chapel illusion veil. She carried a cascade of white miniature carnations and daisies.

Miss Kathleen Prehn of Rifton was maid of honor and Mrs. Francis Cafaldo of Glasco, sister of the bride, was matron of honor. Their gowns were fashioned identically to those of the honor attendants with Mrs. O'Brien and Miss Barberich in orchid and Miss Eckert and Miss Neer in mint.

Jeanne Christiana served as flower girl. She wore an aqua gown styled similarly to those of the other attendants, with a daisy-shaped Venise lace yoke. A tiny daisy cap served as her headpiece and she carried a fireside basket of multi-colored daisies.

HISTORIC WALK GUIDE — Edwin M. Ford, president of the Friends of Historic Kingston presents copy of its new publication to Mayor Raymond W. Garraghan. Historic Kingston: Map and Walking Tour Guide has just been issued detailing history and landmarks within easy walking distance in the uptown section of the city. (Freeman photo by Kruh).

Brochure Fund to Help Movement

Historic Kingston: Map and Walking Tour Guide is an attractive and informative brochure, valuable to both Ulster County residents and visitors to the area. Kingston's 300-year-past is condensed into a capsule history entitled "From Dutch Settlement to a Thriving American City" which gives the reader an immediate acquaintance with the background and the historical importance of the area illustrated on the map.

With the encouragement of revised urban renewal plans, Friends of Historic Kingston are taking a more active part in the preservation movement. Proceeds from the sale of the brochure will go toward this work. Copies may be obtained from the Kingston Area Chamber of Commerce, and also the Governor Clinton Hotel lobby, and will soon be on sale at other points in the county.

The brochure expands the area which is covered by the guided walking tours and identifies by number significant old houses along Pearl Street, Green Street, Maiden Lane, Wall Street, St. James Street and Albany Avenue. The text which accompanies the map describes features of 35 buildings or sites. The illustrations for a number of these were done by James Kamen.

The compact size makes it convenient to carry and the map is easily unfolded for the use of the stroller walking the streets.

Friends of Historic Kingston will continue cooperation with the DAR, Old Dutch Church and Senate House in the guided walking tours on the third Thursdays during the summer. Interiors of these buildings are open for these tours and the next tour is scheduled for June 19 starting at 2 p.m. from the Governor Clinton Hotel.

'Car-Crusher' Also Theme in Woodstock

By TOBIE GEERTSEMA

WOODSTOCK

These days the magic political word is "car-crusher." And Woodstock, plagued by a litter of junked cars similar to that found elsewhere in the county and state — and under pressure from its planning board to remedy the problem — is taking steps against the blight.

This week, after town planners noted they were "disturbed" that Woodstock's three-year-old zoning ordinance was "not being properly enforced" in many instances, the Town Board heeded at least one part of their suggested remedy. Planners protested that "junk cars are still here even after three years of grace." Answering the criticism Supervisor Milton Houst advises: "The crusher might come" to Woodstock; adds that "the town will pay if it must."

Until a crusher arrives on the scene, however, Houst warns that all junked cars in the township are in violation of the law.

Take Them to Ziemba

To lure a crusher to Woodstock, the Town Board has entered into negotiations with Stanley Ziemba, owner of a junkyard near the town dump. The board has arranged an agreement to use the Ziemba premises and add any and all cars possible to his present stockpile. Only if some 200 cars are located in one spot will the Universal Crusher Corporation bring its big machine to town.

Ziemba will permit Universal to place its machinery to crush and dispose of cars on his premises at no cost to him, since the town will assume all costs of disposal. Now it becomes the responsibility of junked car owners to remove the autos to Ziemba's yard. This can be done without cost if the car is taken there by the owner. If pickup is more desirous, the car will be transported to the Ziemba yard or another junkyard outside of Woodstock at a cost of $10 per car.

Those having cars in violation should call the Village Gulf Station, Mill Hill Road, Woodstock, giving information that would allow the staff there to supply a tow truck or wrecker to pull the junker away for $10, or for a slightly higher fee if the car will not roll.

Houst says that after the crusher visits Woodstock (probably not before early September), the car ordinance will be strictly enforced locally. All of which means that between now and September 1, residents in violation would be wise to take advantage of this best and cheapest opportunity to dispose of junked cars.

Junkyard Closing Down

The arrival and departure of the crusher will also spell finis to the Ziemba junkyard. Houst says the yard will go out of business when the crusher's work is done, eliminating the only yard of its type left within Woodstock's boundaries.

The crushing operations at the junkyard will be matched by other crushing across the road at the town dump, more properly called a landfill project. The Town Board this week voted authorization of the advertisement of bids for a Caterpillar loader and bulldozer. When purchase has been completed, the tractor will be used for crushing garbage and rubbish in the landfill at the dump. Presently, Woodstock is paying high monthly rates to the privately owned firm of Overlook Construction Company, headed by local resident Filbur Mundy, for bulldozing efforts at the dump.

Harassment by Children Set Off Attack of Bear

YELLOWSTONE NATIONAL PARK, Wyo. (UPI)—The aging, 400-pound grizzly, pushed out of his old feeding grounds and searching for food near a camp ground, was being harassed by children throwing bottles and rocks.

Running wildly to get away from the screaming children, the bear turned a corner of a building and ran right into 5-year-old Daphne Jax.

The hulking animal picked her up in his jaws and began mauling her. Later he was shot and killed.

This was the story pieced together today from a park official, a campground manager and an expert on bears.

Daphne, who was attacked Tuesday night, was not seriously injured. She was flown to Children's Hospital at her home in St. Paul, Minn., for treatment of cuts and a broken rib.

Dr. Frank C. Craighead of Moose, Wyo., a naturalist who studied the grizzly 10 years, said he was not surprised by the attack.

Last year, he said, the park closed down its earth-filled garbage dumps where the bears got much of their food. The dumps had been the chief source of food for the older bears for years and when they were closed the animals went looking for another, equally accessible, source.

Fish on Quality Environment--- It's the Business of Everyone

POUGHKEEPSIE

"Quality environment is everyone's business," according to Congressman Hamilton Fish Jr., who called for the development of what can be termed as the "environmental conscience" in all our people.

In a press release issued this week, Fish spoke of "crisis on our campuses, crisis of inflation, crisis of Vietnam and the crisis of taxes dominating headlines," saying, "it occurs to me that perhaps President Nixon's creation of a cabinet level Environmental Quality Council, underscoring the crisis of our environment, went largely unnoticed."

"If it did, this is a shame," he added. "Of all the crises we face in this crisis-studded decade, the steady deterioration in our environment is one of the most serious, long-range problems man has to solve if he is to continue to inhabit the earth.

"The question of President Nixon's council, which is not whether it is needed, but if it wil be equal to the major tasks of establishment and maintenance of a healty environment. My call for the creation of a standing committee on the environment, if acted upon favorably, would help implement the aims of the President's council."

Speaking of an "environmental conscience," Fish said, the development of this consciousness must be rapid as is the deterioration of our environment.

"It is not merely a matter of cleaning up the nation's air and water, as vital and as difficult as these achievements are. We must become keenly aware that the days of "destroy and move" are gone in America forever. There is no place to move, there are no frontiers left to which to escape. This nation, its land and water and air, is our only nest, and we must learn to stop fouling it. Superhighways, giant airports, factories and suburban developments are taking place today with little or no thought of what the consequences can be for present and future generations. Pesticides and nitrates leach from the soil into our rivers, sewage pours into our waters, pollution chokes our skies, solid waste litters our countryside and there is today the real fear that unless the reckless injection of pollution into the oceans surrounding our continent ends, we stand in danger of destroying the balance of nature in the shallow areas that are the seat of ocean life.

"Over the past 20 years this need has been largely met, while the more densely populated urbanized states such as New York have developed critical shortages in modern hospital facilities." Congressman Fish said.

Four-Year Terms Given Youths in Police Assault

RED HOOK

Four youths who assaulted a Red Hook policeman in March received four-year terms in state reformatories this week.

County Judge Joseph Jiudice sentenced William Coon, Michael Rowland, Jeffrey Potts and Clayton Brizzie Jr. to the term in County Court for assaulting Rex Maine behind a Red Hook tavern, A'Brial's, in January when he surprised them sniffing glue.

All except Rowland are from Red Hook. He is a Staatsburg resident.

First Assistant District Attorney Dennis McClure recommended a severe punishment for "disrespect of the law." Judge Jiudice mentioned that Coon had been in court three times previously.

Rowland was absent without leave from the Army when arrested by Maine.

Second degree assault and obstructing administration were the felony and misdemeanor lodged against the Red Hook youths. Rowland was charged with third degree assault.

Degrees Awarded at Commencement Exercises in New Paltz

State Senator Basil A. Paterson from Harlem's 27th District told a Commencement audience of 6,000 at State University College, New Paltz, Sunday, June 8 that the modern university must be perceived as an agent of social change in the community where the university exists.

He said that public universities had been esbalished to provide higher education for those who could not afford it and that they could not use the admissions policies of the past to exclude students who had the capacity to benefit themselves and society.

Senator Paterson also questioned the requirement for ROTC programs at universities.

"Armed Forces may well be essential to preserving the security of the nation, especially in times of international insecurity, but we cannot escape the contradiction between academic freedom and military domination," he said.

Senator Paterson said that universities "now must all too often be considered an entirely new kind of institution, defined more by their obligation to serve the State than by any obligation to either teach or discover new knowledge."

Applause for the speaker appeared to be longer and warmer from the graduating students than from their parents.

The college awarded 1178, 230 of them Master's degrees. It was the college's 82 annual commencement.

A student from Belgrade, Yugoslavia, Ljubisa Vitkovic, received one of the three degrees summa cum laude. Others awarded the honor, based on a 3.7 or higher average on a 4-point scale for four years of college, Beverly Venn Britting, Woodstock, and Gloria J. Moore, New Paltz.

Awarded degrees magna cum laude, for a 3.5 or higher average, were nine students, Colette De Blende, Tillson, Loretta Marie Herman, Franklin Square, Linda Lee Hodges, Oneida, Lorraine Looy Hurley, New Paltz, Patricia Ann Lodge, Lynbrook, Blossom Rose Rappaport, Bronx, Mary Isobel Rosner, Saugerties, Lesly Ellen Spitzer, New Rochelle, and Jane Ellen Weinerman, New Paltz.

A total of 111 students received degrees cum laude for 3.0 "B" averages or higher.

Giving the Invocation was Rabbi Jonathan Eichhorn, Kingston. The Rev. Paul Mertzlufft, New Paltz, pronounced the Benediction.

Latin-American Trips Successful Says Rocky

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller said Thursday his two trips to Latin America were successful although they touched off disorders and he was forced to cancel visits to Peru and Chile.

The New York governor, who is seeking to improve U.S.-Latin American relations as President Nixon's emissary, said he knew there were those "who said these trips have been a humiliation to me."

But, he said, they were really successful and the administration had begun "to think positively about what can be done" to improve relations.

Rockefeller talked with newsmen following a White House meeting with the president. During the session, he said, "We started talking about...removing some of the frictions, the areas of conflict" that have arisen between the United States and Latin American nations.

Rockefeller will leave on his third trip Monday, going to Brazil for a three-day stay, then flying to Uruguay and Paraguay.

"We will get to all but one or two of the countries before the mission is ended, Rockefeller said. To call off the trips now, he said, "would be a victory for the enemies of the United States and a defeat for the people of Latin America.

Entitled to Damages

BOSTON (UPI)—The Massachusetts Supreme Court ruled Wednesday a front-row spectator in whose lap a wrestler landed was entitled to $7,300 in damages.

Manuel Silva, 45, of Fall River, suffered a knee injury in the incident in a bout at Woodhouse Arenatorium in Dartmouth, near New Bedford, Sept. 23, 1962.

He sued the arena operator, and the promoter.

Bizarre Automobile Trip Ends at Area VA Hospital

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — A warrant was issued Thursday for the arrest of a retired Air Force police sergeant, accusing him of kidnaping a local newspaperboy in connection with a bizarre automobile trip that began at Plattsburgh and ended at the Albany Veterans Hospital.

Albany police said the trip ended when Ernest Mitchell, 46, of Plattsburgh, gave up a gun he held on the paperboy, Richard Bushey, 13, and his daughter, Claudia, 16, to the hospital's chief psychiatrist. Police and FBI agents witnessed the exchange on the hospital's grounds from concealed positions.

The warrant for Mitchell's arrest was issued by the Clinton County district attorney's office in Plattsburgh.

Police said Mitchell forced his wife, daughter and the paperboy into his car at gunpoint Thursday morning and set out for the Walter Reed Hospital in Washington.

Mrs. Mitchell, they said, talked her husband into stopping at Albany Veterans.

Police said she sought help from the psychiatrist, Thomas Gilmore, while Mitchell held the youths.

Mitchell was admitted to the hospital for observation after he relinquished his wapon, a revolver.

Discovered by police in his car were two sawed - off shotguns, two pistols, two knives and 20 rounds of ammunition.

Defends District

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Rep. L. Mendel Rivers, D-S.C., chairman of the House Armed Services Committee, in a speech today defended the "military-industrial complex" and the abundance of military facilities in his home district.

"Charleston happens to be a great, natural, warm water port. It was made that way by God—who, I presume—is not a captive of the military-industrial complex."

Seen as Key Man In ABM Decision

By CARL P. LEUBSDORF

WASHINGTON (AP) — A senator whose uncommitted stance on the Safeguard controversy makes him a key figure in the fate of the program, says he is impressed with a compromise proposal to delay ABM deployment while allowing work to continue on other parts of the missile defense project.

Sen. Howard M. Cannon, D-Nev., said in an interview that "When I make up my mind, this could be something I would lead to."

"I am impressed by it," he added about the plan aimed at heading off what now appears to be a near deadlock over President Nixon's proposal to build missile defense sites in Montana and North Dakota.

Cannon is one of a half-dozen senators, who according to the latest Associated Press poll, haven't made up their minds on the Safeguard project.

Despite administration insistence it has no plans to yield, attention is going to the proposal by Sens. Thomas J M.cIntyre, D-N.H., and Edward W. Brooke, R-Mass., to delay deployment but continue work on site radar and computers.

But some ABM foes say it isn't really a compromise.

"Calling something by another name doesn't change it," one opponent said, adding that any kind of deployment at the two sites would be a step toward Safeguard and no compromise.

Some ABM opponents are considering a plan to force an early showdown on the issue next week, but those close to the discussions say the odds are against it.

McIntyre, meanwhile, is conducting an extensive behind-the-scenes lobbying effort with some 80 of the 10 senators. The other 20 are considered hard-core ABM supporters who would never consider a compromise, even if the administration accepts it.

The New Hampshire Democrat proposed originally that the radars and computers be deployed either at the two initial ABM sites or at the U.S. test facility at Kwajelein in the Pacific.

But he is understood now to be leaning against Kwajelein, and other sources say the only hope for acceptance of a compromise within the Armed Service committee now considering the proposal is to put the radar and computer components at either one or two actual ABM sites.

Meanwhile, the ABM propaganda battle is expected to shift scenes this weekend to Pittsburgh where the U.S. Conference of Mayors is meeting.

Mayor Jerome Cavanagh of Detroit has been reported planning an anti-ABM resolution.

And William J. Casey, head of a new pro-ABM group with strong ties to the Nixon administration, urged the conference chairman, Mayor Terry Schrunk of Portland, Ore., by telegram Thursday, to push a pro-Safeguard resolution.

Rosendale Zoning Ordinance: Another Hearing Possible

ROSENDALE — The chairman of the Town of Rosendale's Zoning Commission today said he sees a possibility of a third public hearing on the town's proposed zoning ordinance.

Howard Mansfield said that the following items raised at Thursday evening's hearing in Maple Hill and one held last month, "It is felt by some of the members that before we accept the complaints — if you want to call them that—and make changes, there should be another hearing."

He said the meeting would be decided at an executive session of the commission scheduled for early next week. If held, the public hearing would be no sooner than two weeks later.

The commission is required by law to hold at least two public hearings before the town board reviews the proposed ordinance. Many townships have been planning to hold more than the required two meetings, in an effort to gain public approval and to iron out ordinance problems.

A quiet meeting with small attendance was held in the old Maple Hill School House Thursday, where Mansfield said the public was outnumbered by officials of the town and commission.

The commissioner said he has not seen any "major" items, such as entire sections of the proposed law, that need changes; but noted that questions raised at the two meetings were important to the persons involved.

He said some of the changes so far have amounted to "proof reading by the public." Spelling corrections, misnumbered items, and printing errors have been found, he said.

Mansfield gave no estimate of when the proposed law would be considered by the Town Board, saying "at this point, I couldn't begin to guess."

Doctor Visiting U. S. A. Wants to Invest Here

Q — I am a doctor, here as an exchange visitor. I would like to invest $1,000 for about three years. What would be the best stock for me? — S. M.

A — I won't attempt to select the best stock but Emery Industries, a specialty chemicals manufacturer, would be a good choice. About 23 per cent of its products go to the plastics industry, which has grown at a 12 per cent to 14 per cent compound annual rate during the past decade. The remainder of its sales find their end use in cosmetics, textiles, dry cleaning, lubricants, detergents, and such. All told, 50 per cent of the company's products are proprietary items.

In the summer of 1967, Emery began a major four-year expansion program which will cost about $35 million. Earnings for fiscal 1969, ended March 31, should be around $2.55 a share compared with $2.15 the year previous. For nine months there was a 16 per cent increase, year-to-year, on a 22 per cent gain in sales. A three-for-one split of the shares (50.6 per cent family-owned) has recently been proposed.

Q — My son, teaching English in Saudi Arabia, gave me power of attorney to change his stock holdings which include 100 shares each of Maremont, American Motors and Alabama Gas. I'd like to switch these into Inland Steel or Liggett & Myers which pay reasonable dividends. What's your thought? — W. F.

A— I agree that American Motors and Maremont should be replaced, but I'd hold Alabama Gas for its anticipated growth. AMO shares are extremely speculative despite some earnings improvement. Maremont's future is beclouded by the Federal Trade Commission's pending investigation of its acquisitions since 1953. In addition, 1968 share earnings plummeted to 19 cents vs. $2.15 reported last year. Of the switches you propose, my choice is Inland Steel because of its strong position in the Chicago steel market and its overall growth potential. Your son should aim for strong growth rather than high income and, hence, I'd substitute Gulton Industries— an attractive turnaround — for Liggett & Myers.

Report Injury To Ex-Freeman Delivery Boy

KINGSTON — A former Freeman newsboy was slightly injured last Saturday afternoon in a three-car collision at the intersection of Route 9W and Albany Avenue in Kingston.

Gregory Parry, 21, of Franklin Street, a passenger in one of the vehicles, received lacerations of the forehead. He was treated at Kingston Hospital and later released.

According to police, the accident occurred at approximately 5 o'clock Saturday evening. An auto operated by Edward J. Worblewski, 50, of Spring Street and another car, operated by Colleen Miller, 27, of Overlook Circle, Mr. Marion were travelling north on Route 9W at the time of the accident.

Food plants of the grass family are called cereals from Ceres, the Roman goddess of agriculture and the harvest.

Harry R. Hines Elected to Head Local Kiwanis

Harry R. Hines was elected president of the Kingston Kiwanis Club for the 1969-1970 term at the meeting held Thursday at Gov. Clinton Hotel. He will succeed John McCullough, present leader of the local service group.

Elected to serve with Hines was Harlow DeForest, first vice president, John F. Burns III, second vice president, Fred L. VanDeusen, secretary-treasurer, and Joseph A. Modica and Robert J. Ryan, directors for three-year terms.

The current sale of roses by the Kiwanis Club for the benefit of the Scholarship Fund brought a report of approximately 60 dozen sold to date. Next week is the final report on the rose sale, with delivery date of September 20 for the roses. Harlow F. DeForest, chairman of the rose project, stated that next week's report would have to surpass the total of 60 dozen in order to meet the 1968 record sale. All Kiwanis members are selling roses.

Donald MacIsaac, program chairman, presented a showing of a film taken during the visit of the late Senator Robert F. Kennedy to Kingston upon the occasion of the Community Chest "over the top." Many local persons were seen in the film.

Stock Market Tumbles To Lowest Level of Year

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market—buffeted for a month by the tightening money situation—languished today at its lowest level of the year.

The market tumbled Thursday to the biggest of four consecutive sharp losses which were triggered Monday by an unexpectedly large increase in banks' prime rate—the interest chargd their biggest borrowers —to a record 8½ per cent from 7½ per cent.

On top of that came statement sfrom Nixon administration officials that wage and price controls were a possibility if Congress did not extend the surtax.

A broker said "An atmosphere of crisis and confusion has been created and it is hardly any wonder that the stock market is behaving the way it has been this week."

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials fell to a 1969 low of 892.58 on a loss of 12.02 Thursday. It penetrated the previous 1969 low of 899.80 reached on Feb. 25 and was at the lowest closed at 892.34. The 1969 high was 968.85 on May 14.

The Associated Press 60-stock year of 318.4 with a loss of 3.3 Thursday.

Losses this week have embraced blue chip stocks as well as the more volatile issues. Among 1,600 issues traded on the New York Exchange Thursay, 1,187 declined and 251 advanced. The number of new 1962 lows spurted to 442 while only two issues reached new highs.

One reassuring factor was the drop in trading on the Big Board Thursday to 11.79 million shares, from 13.64 million Wednesday when the loss was considerably less severe.

Brokers said many investors have retreated to the sidelines in an effort to ride out the monetary uncertainties. Institutions have been trading big blocks of shares and, according to brokers, they are mainly sellers.

Braves Defeat Astros in Home Opener, 6-2

JOE PEPITONE SURROUNDED AT DIETZ

KINGSTON Charlie Moore and the Kingston Braves did a fine job in the home opener of the Mid-Hudson Rookie League at Dietz Stadium Thursday night as the locals dumped the Beacon Astros, 6-2. Moore, getting the starting assignment from Manager Paul Giannuzzi, held the visitors to five hits. He also had three hits in four trips.

Greg Rios provided the margin of victory for the locals at the plate going two-for-two, including 3 ribbys and a triple. Jerry Hawkins, Braves leftfielder, also had three hits and two ribbys, with a double.

Ron Palumbo had two hits, including a double for the losers. Andy Fredrick was the losing pitcher. Kingston is now 2-3 in the league play:

Ron Valle got the Braves on the score board in the first inning. Rapid Ron walked, stole second, went to third on the throw and scored on a wild pitch.

Beacon tied the score in the top of the third on a single by Jerry Lerner and Palumbo's double.

Kingston came back with the go ahead marker in the bottom of the third. Joe Schabot tripled to deep center field and came home on a single by Hawkins.

Rios got his first RBI in the fifth, hitting a sacrifice fly to score Hawkins, who had started things off with a single. He had moved to third on a single by Moore.

The locals iced the contest in the bottom of the sixth stanza, coming up with three markers.

Mike Patrick started things off with a single. Schabot drew a walk and Patrick came home on a single by Hawkins. It was here that Rios did his thing, a booming triple to deep center, scoring Hawkins and and Schabot.

Beacon got one more in the top half of the seventh, as Randy Adams tripled in Mark Wilson.

Moore was sharp for most of the game, as he struck out the side in the fourth and two in the sixth. He was so sharp, in fact, that he had words with third baseman Palumbo in the fourth stanza.

Pepi, Murcer Make Them Wait

By MORT LAFFIN

KINGSTON More than 800 young ballplayers, parents, managers and interested spectators, waited as patiently as could be expected for the arrival of Yankee greats Joe Pepitone and Bobby Murcer for the baseball clinic staged Thursday afternoon at Dietz Stadium.

And waited and waited and waited.

The stars were to arrive around 5 p.m. The kids arrived at 4:30 p.m. Pepitone and Murcer showed at 7:15 p.m.

Spirits were far from dampened by the late arrival, as hundreds of young ball players mobbed Pepitone's canary-yellow Cadillac, as it pulled behind the stands. Both Murcer and Pepi emerged smiling, but had to fight their way through the autograph-seekers to the field.

Once on the field, the two stars were quite anxious to get things under way, as they had to leave for an appointment in New York City at 10 p.m.

The clinic was again held up, as a lack of supervision for the youngsters, one visible policeman, let them swell out onto the field and Pepi was reluctant to do any instructing or autograph signing, in close quarters. Raising his voice to a booming yell, the Yankee first sacker ordered the fans back into the stands before he would begin his part of the instruction.

Once some semblance of order was restored, the stars got under way with their part of the program.

Pepi, his beautifully coiffered hair flowing in the breeze, decked out in an off-gold Italian silk shirt, white bell-bottoms with brown stripes and olive Italian loafers, was first on the agenda.

The Yankee star instructed the boys in every facet of fielding at first base and also touched briefly on the other infield and outfield positions. He was quick to point out that an alert mind and a well-conditioned body are the keys to success in baseball.

Pepitone then relinqushed the mike and the attention of the crowd to young Murcer, the heir-apparent to the super star role vacated to Mickey Mantle.

Pepi introduced Murcer by saying, "And now I would like to turn things over to a young man who means a lot to the Yankees and who I feel will be around a heck of a lot longer than I will, Bobby Murcer."

The young third baseman-turned-outfielder, reciprocated with some fine words about his well-known chauffeur and then began to give instruction on hititng. He said, "You must choose a stance and a bat that is comfortable to you. Then you must know what pitch you hit best and have a good idea as to how opposing hurlers will pitch to you."

After the instruction period, which lasted about 20 minutes, pepi and Murcer put on a hitting exhibition for the spectators.

Murcer stepped in the batter's box first and tried to set himself as best he could in his loafers. Pepitone sauntered to the mound to pitch to his traveling companion, amid cries of "Throw the knuckler, throw the knuckler, an obvious reference to an incident a little while back in which Pepi hurt his arm and was sidelined for fooling around with a knuckle ball.

Murcer popped a couple up and then drilled four shots over first base. For a finale, he drilled one to deep right-center field.

Then Pepitone got up to the plate, with Murcer doing his best to confound the "Beautiful One" with the old "Ephus Pitch."

After a couple of pop ups, foul balls and a missed strike, the current home run leader for the Bronx Bombers with 17, started lining shots to right field.

Of course, Pepi had to out-do Murcer for his finale, and he did, in true Pepitone-style. He hit a pitch deep to right field, almost as high as the light tower, the ball dropping at the foot of the embankment. And, not satisfied with that one, called for another pitch, which he promptly hit to the bank in left field.

Once this was over, the under-supervised horde of spectators rushed onto the field and Pepitone, Murcer and company headed for the supposed safety of his caddy.

In the sanctity of the auto, Pepi and Murcer continued to sign autographs on paper, baseballs and gloves until a very unfortunate and bush league style play was made by one of the young players.

The unidentified young man thrust a piece of paper into the car and asked for Joe's autograph. Upon receiving it, the nameless individual spat right into Pepi's face and ran off into the crowd. That's really something to be proud of.

Pepitone, obviously enraged by the boy's action, and rightfully so, hollored at the kids to get off his car, threw it into reverse and took off for parts unknown, thus ending the "Epic of Instruction."

Previous to the arrival of the stars, Paul Giannuzzi, manager of the Kingston Braves of the Mid Hudson Rookie League, and some of his ball players, Ron Valle, Mike Patrick, Bernie Schaffer and Greg Rios, did a fine job of conducting the clinic in place of the late celebrities.

Giannuzzi and his boys covered every facet of fielding and hitting and were the subject of earnest autograph hounds themselves. Obviously heroes in the area, the boys did themselves quite proud, especially with such short notice.

Pepitone, who is off to the finest start of a season in his career with the Yanks, attributed it to the fact that he is in better condition.

"I really got myself into playing condition this year," he said, leading one to think that perhaps he hadn't in other years.

There has been rumors of late that Pepi is going into the restaurant business, ala Joe Namath and he was quick to admit to it.

"We are going to form a corporation. I'm interested in any thing that can make more money for me. I would like a bar on the East-side," he said, referring to that section of New York City that houses many of the "in-places", including Namath's bar and Mr. Laffs, owned by Phil Linz and Bobby Anderson.

Jet fans can take heart from Pepi's next statements, as he said, "Namath will play for the Jets this season, you can be very nearly one hundred per cent sure of that. But, if I were in his place, I'd have done the same thing. He doesn't consort with gangsters, never has. His bar is a public place and he can't be held responsible for who goes in there. Rozelle (Pete Rozelle, Commissioner of Football) is wrong, and I would have told him so in no uncertain terms," he concluded.

Murcer, a so-far-less controversial star than Pepi or Namath, was very relaxed in his manner and did make you think of Mantle quite a bit.

"The press says I'm a super star like Mantle, well, maybe I am. If I have to be one to help the Yankees, I will be, other than that, I just want to get the job done," said Murcer.

The young star went on, "Mantle has been my idol all my life and playing with the Yankees has been my dream. If I can come close to playing like him, I'll be happy."

So will the Yankees, Bobby, so will the Yankees.

BOSS 302 WOW

Leads U. S. Open With 66

Murphy Cards Four Of Seven He Wants

HOUSTON (UPI)—Bob "Florida Fats" Murphy has a goal—and he's more than halfway to it today as he leads the field into the second round of the U. S. Open Golf Championship on a Friday the 13th that will prove a sad day for most of the 149 players.

"I set a goal for myself of being seven strokes under par at the end of the tournament," Murphy said calmly—not even bothering to mention that would give him a 273 that would break the Open record and also the course record at steaming hot Champions Golf Club.

The 26-year-old watermelon tycoon from Bartow, Fla., got four of those seven strokes in the very first round Thursday with a 4-under-par 66—worth a one-stroke lead over another of the roly-poly boys, Miller Barber.

"If you're going to get a 273, you're going to have one real good round somewhere," Murphy explained. "I didn't think I'd get it in the first round, however."

With the "real good round" already in the bank and lots more of the hot weather he says he needs in prospect, Murphy has only three more strokes to make up on par and three more rounds in which to do it.

"The hotter it is, the better I like it," declared the 5-foot-10, 214-pound Murphy. "I was a weightlifter in high school and the doctors tell me I have short muscles that get taut in cold weather so that I can't swing a golf club right. In hot weather, I loosen up."

Murphy loosened up at exactly the right time Thursday, taking the course after Texan Barber already was in the clubhouse with his 33-34. He seemed headed for disaster right away when his second shot on the second hole caught a trap.

"But when I walked up to the trap I found I had just a perfect lie," Murphy said. "I hit it right out of there and into the cup—a 35-foot blast. That was the shot that made my whole round right there. Just when it looked like I would get a bogey, I got a birdie."

Murphy had four more birdies and was tagged with a single bogey on the rest of his trip around the tricky Cypress Creek layout. That gave him his one-stroke margin over Barber and two strokes over lanky Al Geiberger and Deane Beman, each at 68.

In a three-way tie at 69, three strokes off the pace, were Masters champion George Archer, long-hitting Tom Weiskopf, and Dean Refram—making a total of only seven players who were able to better par 70 over a course that a lot of them had been saying was easy. Six others were at even par—former champion Arnold Palmer, ex-football player Bunky Henry, Bob Rosburg, George Knudson, Dick Crawford, and Jack Ewing Jr.

The field will be cut to the low 60 and ties at the end of today's round, meaning that as many as 90 players may be eliminated on Friday the 13th. In the opening round there were 69 players at 74 or better, indicating the cutoff point could be about 149 at the end of the second round.

Defending champion Lee Trevino, who complained that "the best part of my game, driving, let me down," was among the 23 players in a traffic jam at four-over-par 74, where another round of the same type could put them in danger. Also at 74 were former champions Jack Nicklaus and Billy Casper, both of whom had been among the pre-tournament favorites.

Barber, a 38-year-old bachelor who insists he's "37 and holding," had five birdies like Murphy, but also had two bogeys. Cracked Barber, "I don't care who shot it, that's a helluva round."

It certainly was on a day that started as a "sauna bath," had a cooling 15-minute sprinkle of rain at mid-afternoon that Murphy said made the course "play a lot longer, you bet," and then returned to the sauna bath status.

Woodstock Riding Club Event Is Still Strictly 'Show Biz'

WOODSTOCK — It has been 22 years since the Woodstock Riding Club staged its first horse show back in 1947. And needless to say, there have been a few changes since then.

Since that modest inaugural, new classes have been added annually, while old ones were dropped and perhaps riding clothes have become a bit more stylish.

But the "never say die" attitude of the people involved in "horse show biz" stays the same.

Sunday the Riding Club will again put on its annual open horse show, with more than 30 classes on the agenda, including jumping, stock horse, and the ever so popular driving class. The prize money goes into the hundreds of dollars, not to men tion the valuable silver trophies as well as a championship cooler and a dress sheet for the top point earners of the day.

This is a far cry from the early years when the prizes included such goodies as a case of apples, five bales of hay and sometimes a bag of peas.

In those days, one of the most popular events was the pulling contest, where teams of large draft horses competed against each other to see which team could pull the most weight. This class hasn't been included in the program for many years, but in some parts of the country it is making a strong comeback.

This year's show promises to be one of the largest in the club's history, with exhibitors coming in from many states, as well as Canada.

Overnight stabling is available on the scenic club grounds on the lower Ohayo Mountain Road for those arriving the day before the show. This is an open show, enabling all breeds of horses and ponies, and riders of all ages of both amateur and professional categories to compete.

Post entries will be accepted and no class will be cancelled for any reason. The show begins promptly at 9 a.m.

Trophies and ribbons are on display at the Rondout National Bank in Woodstock and the Ulster County Savings Bank in Kingston until closing time tonight.

Prize lists may be obtained from The Hurley Saddle Shop, Old Route 209, Hurley, or Mrs. Daniel Morehouse, Woodstock.

Russell Quits Basketball For Career in Hollywood

BILL RUSSELL

BOSTON (AP) — Bill Russell is quitting basketball in favor of a Hollywood career according to a Boston paper, but his old mentor Red Auerbach says as far as he knows there's been no definite decision yet.

Russell, one of pro basketball's all-time greats, was reported resigning his job as player—coach of the National Basketball Association champion Boston Celtics.

The copyrighted story was written by Sports Editor Cliff Sundberg for this morning's editions of the Boston Herald Traveler.

The story said the 6-foot-9 center, who has sparked the Celtics to 11 NBA championships in 13 years, was giving up his estimated $150,000-a-year post to pursue movie and television work plus other ventures on the West Coast.

The paper said the 35-year-old Russell infomed Auerbach of his decision Monday night and then confided to friends Wednesday that he had to make the move "in order to find new sources of income for the future."

It said Russell is currently in Hollywood and staying at the apartment of former Cleveland Browns fullback Jimmy Brown, another geat athlete who made the jump to a film and television career.

It added that immediate plans call for Russell to make two movies, including one with Brown, who is a close friend.

Auerbach, however, said early today in Boston that he hadn't been informed of any such definite decision.

"We had a little conversation Monday, and it was my understanding he was postponing any decision for about six weeks," the former Celtics coach and current geneal manager said.

Russell led the University of San Francisco to 59 straight college victories and two national championships, paced the United States team to victory in the 1956 Olympics, then turned pro.

St. Louis drafted him, but Auerbach pulled the master stroke which launched the Celtics' NBA dynasty, trading Cliff Hagan and Ed Macauley for the big man.

Dominating the league from the beginning with his great defensive play, Russell has been voted the Most Valuable Player five times and is the only man in NBA history to pull down 20,000 rebounds.

The only playoff losses in his 13 years as a player came in 1957-58, when he sat out part of the finals with an ankle injury, and in 1966-67, when arch-rival Wilt Chamberlain finally got the upper hand as Philadelphia eliminated the Celtics in the Eastern finals.

When Auerbach relinquished the coaching duties in 1966 Russell was named in his place—the first Negro to coach a major professional team in this country.

The Celtics lost out to Philadelphia in that first season, but came back to regain their title in 1967-68 and then win it again in a series of playoff upsets last season after finishing fourth in their division in the regular campaign.

No-Run Pitchers Breathe New Life Into Phillies

By MIKE RECHT
Associated Press Sports Writer

After nine straight defeats, the Philadelphia Phillies needed something...and it turned out to be nothing.

That's exactly what Philly pitchers have given the Los Angeles Dodgers the last two nights—nothing. The results has been a modest, but welcome two-game winning streak.

Rookie Billy Champion broke the losing string Wednesday night with a five-hit shutout and Grant Jackson made it two in a row Thursday night by scattering seven hits as the Phillies nipped the Dodgers and hard-luck Bill Singer 1-0.

Philadelphia pitchers had only three shutouts—one by Jackson—all year entering this series, but they came to the right place. The Dodgers now have been blanked nine times and Singer has had only five runs scored for him in his six defeats.

It was the only shutout of the night on a limited schedule as Montreal beat San Diego 4-1, Cincinnati downed St. Louis 4-3 in 10 innings, Pittsburgh slipped by Houston 4-3 and the Chicago Cubs outhit Atlanta 12-6 in the National League. Washington defeated Oakland 4-1 in the only American League game.

Jackson, 3-6, who has allowed only four runs in his five complete-game victories, avenged a 7-6 loss to Singer two weeks ago. Johnny Briggs gave him a game-opening homer, his first of the season, on Singer's second pitch and Jackson made it last.

He struck out 11, including two when the Dodgers had runners on first and third with one out in the sixth. And in the second outfielder Larry Hisle threw out Andy Kosco at the plate on the last of three singles in the inning.

While the Dodgers were being whitewashed for the second night in a row, one of their former big hitters was helping Montreal win its third game in four starts after a 20-game losing spin. Ron Fairly, acquired Wednesday from the Dodgers for Maury Wills, singled in the tie-breaking run in the ninth inning.

Gary Sutherland opened the ninth with a double off loser Tommie Sisk, 0-4, and Fairly, pinch hitting in his first appearance for the Expos, laced a pitch by reliever Billy McCool for a 2-1 lead. Mack Jones tripled another run home and scored on a ground out.

Rusty Staub's seventh inning homer for Montreal had broken a scoreless duel between San Diego's Joe Niekro, who gave only one other hit in seven innings, and Jerry Robertson, who had broken the 20-game spin last Sunday.

Robertson had a four-hitter entering the eighth, but Bobby Wine's error led the way to Ed Spiezio's tying two-out single.

Lee May, who hit his 16th homer earlier, slammed a game-winning single with the bases loaded and one out in the 10th inning for Cincinnati.

Pete Rose started the rally with the 13th hit off Nelson Briles, 4-5, and Jim Stewart reached base when catcher Tim McCarver failed to come up with his sacrifice bunt for an error. After a sacrifice, Tony Perez was walked intentionally and May followed with his hit.

Pinch-hitter Carl Taylor rapped a two-out, tie-breaking single for Pittsburgh in the ninth innnig after reliever Fred Gladding hit Manny Sanguillen with a pitch and Sanguillen reached third on a sacrifice and ground out.

Roberto Clemente had tied the game for Pittsburgh with a two-run homer in the sixth inning. Jim Bunning, 6-4, scattered nine hits for the victory.

Al Spangler hit his third and fourth homers, each with a man on, and Ernie Banks doubled in his 51st and 52nd runs as the Cubs built a 7-0 lead behind Dick Selma's one-hit pitching for seven innings.

Hank Aaron ruined Selma, 6-3, with a three-run homer, his 17th, in the eighth, but Ron Santo highlighted a five-run Chicago ninth with a two-run homer.

Jim Shellenback, after eight relief appearances since being acquired on waivers from Pittsburgh May 14, started his first game and spaced seven hits for Washington for his first victory.

Hank Allen hit his first homer for the Senators and Del Unser drove in two runs with two singles.

Rhinebeck Scores Sixth Victory

KINGSTON

John Lobotsky blanked Corner Rest, 6-0, on six hits, as the Rhinebeck entry scored its sixth victory in seven games in the National Division of the City Slow Pitch League Thursday at Block Park.

In other games, Blackwatch Farms outslugged Cardinal Inn, 10-6, and Esposito's edged Tops Cleaners, 9 to 8, to stay a half game behind Rhinebeck in the league standings.

Rhinebeck is now 6-1, Esposito's, 5-1.

John Lobotsky fired the 4-hit shutout for Rhinebeck, while the winners collected 12 hits off John Lyons. Dave Sigler stroked a double and two singles and Ed Williams rapped a solo homer. Joe Tortorello knocked in three runs with a double and single and Gordon Bailey had two singles.

Water Supply Is Key To a Showplace Lawn

Will your lawn be as pretty in August as it is in May? It can be if you have plenty of water. In many sections of the country, July and August are so dry that local authorities impose restrictions on the use of water for such "non-essentials" as lawn and garden sprinkling.

If you have such a water shortage each year, investigate the possibility of having your own well and water system as a supplementary source of "free" water. This advice comes from the Pluming-heating-Cooling Information Bureau, which points out that at least 50,000 wells for such use are installed each year. The entire system consists of a small-diameter well, usually no more than four inches, an electric pump, automatic controls for turning the pump on and off and a storage tank. Once the system is installed it costs just pennies a day to operate the pump, so the water is, for all practical purposes, "free."

Once you have enough water, follow these simple watering tips from the Bureau.

1. Avoid watering the lawn lightly at frequent intervals. This causes shallow growth of grass roots and stimulates the growth of weeds.

2. Heavy watering when the grass needs it will moisten the soil to a considerable depth, and encourage deeper and sturdier root growth as the stored water is used up.

3. A sign that more water is needed is wilting, when grass leaves grow limp and your footprints show. This may happen during any hot afternoon, but when the grass wilts in the morning, it needs more water.

4. Brief showers may moisten an inch or two of the top soil, but they'll leave a dry layer above the deeper moisture. You should water after such showers to restore the normal reserve to full capacity.

5. Sandy soils hold less water than clay or humus, so they need watering more frequently.

Tips on Garden Hoses: Care Makes Them Last

The way garden hoses continue to sell every year is not only a tribute to the number of new people owning lawns and gardens, but also an indictment of the older gardeners who have purchased hoses before.

Assuming you purchase a good garden hose to begin with you should seldom have to replace it. Even when a hose goes bad it can be repaired with very little effort and only pennies in expense.

As with all tools, care is the essential ingredient in prolonging the life of a hose. When not in use it should be coiled up and stored away.

You can shorten the life of any hose by leaving it in the driveway where you drive over it.

Dragging a hose over concrete surfaces not only abrades the rubber or plastic material but it damages the couplings as well.

Don't leave the water turned on at the faucet while closing it at the nozzle end for any length of time. The pressure will only damage the hose.

Don't leave a hose out in the hot sun after using it. The still water remaining in the hose will just get hot and weaken the hose material.

When couplings get damaged or if the hose springs a leak near the end, get new couplings. Cut off the old and in case of a damaged hose, cut away the bad portion.

Purchase new couplings of the right size. The size to worry about is the inside diameter of the hose. The rest is standard.

Couplings are available with metal clinchers that can be pounded down over the surface of the hose after the tube portion is inserted into it. Couplings are available without clinchers and in this case you use a clamp.

For plastic hoses, use a special coupling made for plastic plus a clamp. There also are plastic hose fittings that require no clamp. A tool is included that allows you to tighten an inner portion of the fitting so that it cqueezes against the hose and the outer wall of the clamp.

When repairing a plastic hose, dip the end to be repaired in hot water first. This will make it soft and easier to handle.

A hose that is cut or damaged can be kept from leaking temporarily by wrapping with tape. For a permanent repair, cut away the damaged part and use a hose mender. This is a brass tube which is inserted in both cut ends of the hose. It is held in place with prongs that are pounded down or by clamps.

Keep faucet threads clean of dirt and this will lengthen the life of the coupling. Replace washers in all fittings frequently.

Keep hose away from oil or grease since they will damage rubber.

Here's What's New In Shower Controls

There was a time when devotees of tub-bathing and those who favored showers came close to feuding.

Now all that has changed. According to the Plumbing-Heating-Cooling Information Bureau, most families have members who favor both, and few bathrooms being installed today are without showering equipment as well as bathtubs. Major improvements in equipment helped popularize the shower, especially in recent years, so that if yours is over 5 years old, it's outdated.

According to Howard Griesbach of Powers Regulator Co., a firm that helped pioneer all types of liquid flow controls, the upgrading features include the following:

1. Better temperature controls. In old-fashioned showers, hot and cold water was mixed manually. Any sudden surge in water supply pressure could change the mixture, giving the user a sudden dousing of icy cold or near-scalding water that could be as dangerous as it was unwelcome. Today's controls are engineered to adjust to pressure change so that, once it's set, the temperture remains constant.

2. Better showerheads. The old ones were shaped like the rose on a watering can and offered the user just as little control over water flow. Some were so large in diameter that the strong rush of water could knock over an off-balance bather. Today's showerhead has as many as eight different spray settings, ranging from fine, needle and coarse to full-flow. Unlike the old types, which often clogged, today's are self-cleaning.

Outdoor Sink

If you're planning a backyard patio for outdoor relaxation and informal entertaining, why not include a sink with hot and cold water and a drinking fountain, says the Plumbing-Heating-Cooling Information Bureau. They will make both entertaining and cleanup easier. The fountain will keep children from running in and out of the kitchen all day for drinks of water.

Helpful Booklet

Did you know that there are literally dozens of ways to combine the basic fixtures in your bathroom? Over 30 of them are included in a booklet titled "Modern Bathroom Plans." It's available for 25 cents and a 6-cent stamp from the Plumbing-Heating-Cooling Information Bureau, 35 East Wacker Drive, Chicago, Ill. 60601.

Baltimore, Md., was the first city to erect a monument to the memory of George Washington.

Water Is Plentiful For Surburban Living

Americans are fleeing to the suburbs and beyond in droves—and business, industry and recreational facilities are following right behind. The shopping center or industrial complex several miles beyond city limits is getting to be a common sight.

One of the so-called problems faced by ex-urbanites is "where do we get our water?" According to the Plumbing-Heating-Cooling Information Bureau, they simply have wells drilled and get their water from the ground. While urbanites are struggling with water shortages and pollution problems, their country cousins have all the water they want when they want it. No periodic water shortages. No water meters.

There's about 40 times as much ground water as there is fresh surface water in the U.S., according to the Bureau. Ground water, through individual water systems, already serves about 10 million American families. It's a little known fact but wells are the sole or partial source of water for about 30 per cent of our nation's urban community water systems.

In view of these facts, why doesn't the public know more about our ground water resources? That's hard to say, but a major reason probably is that you can't see it. Everyone can see and admire a lake, a river or a reservoir. Only those who have a professional reason to be informed know what's underground. Yet it may be the solution to the water shortages caused by lack of rain or pollution of surface streams.

For more information on having your own well, write to the Ground Water Resources Institute, 205 W. Wacker Dr., Chicago, Ill. 60606. Send 25 cents in coin and ask for "How Water Wells Help You Solve Your Water Problems—Easily and Economically!"

Plan With Care

If your summer remodeling plans call for updating an old bathroom or adding a new one, visit a plumbing contractor's showroom before you begin. Ask him to show you the latest products and to explain the differences in product quality to you. Better quality fixtures are more efficient and stain and acid-resistant.

You can get ideas for arranging fixtures from a booklet titled "Modern Bathroom Plans" that includes 34 layouts. It's available for 25 cents and a 6-cent stamp from the Plumbing-Heating-Cooling Information Bureau, 35 E. Wacker Drive, Chicago, Ill. 60601.

Favors 18-Month Moratorium On Large Corporate Mergers

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Federal Trade Commissioner James M. Nicholson favors an 18-month moratorium on large corporate mergers, with government agencies passing on each such merger that might be proposed during that period.

Nicholson said he favored the move because "we may not have that much time before the alarming trend toward overall economic concentration . . . works permanent political changes. There is a real danger that these changes can happen overnight with startling implications."

Probes Later

Under the present system the government generally investigates mergers only after they occur.

"I would favor an 18-month moratorium on large company acquisitions," Nicholson said Thursday in a speech at Manchester, Vt. During that period, he said, no company with assets over $250 million would be allowed to acquire any company with more than $10 million in assets, unless approval came first from either the proper regulatory agency or the Justice Department.

Nicholson said President Dwight D. Eisenhower's warning against the military-industrial complex could be extended "to all concentrations of economic power in too few hands which could endanger our liberties or democratic process."

Unchecked Power

"While it is true that many conglomerates are prominent members of the industrial-military complex, old-line (nonglomerate) companies in basic metals, autos, office equipment, electronics, drugs and food may have infinitely more unchecked political power," he warned.

Nicholson said it would be "a perilous proposition at best" to try for emergency legislation to impose a merger moratorium. He urged instead an immediate increase under existing law in the pace of FTC action "against all significant acquisitions, conglomerate or otherwise, where there may be substantial anticompetitive effects."

Conglomerates are firms which expand rapidly through diversification and mergers in an unlimited number of unrelated fields.

If corporate acquisitions continue at the present rate, Nicholson said, by 1975 the 100 largest corporations will hold over 55 per cent of the nation's assets and the 200 largest will control more than 70 per cent.

Nicholson said his merger moratorium proposal would not be a "foot-in-the-door" to an eventual premerger clearance program by the government. He said it would be "a respite to enable more thoughtful consideration and study of economic concentration and the merger movement."

Appeals Bench Choice Is Delayed by Rocky

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Gov. Rockefeller was said today to be deferring his choice of a Court of Appeals successor to Kenneth B. Keating until he finds out what President Nixon plans to do about filling the Abe Fortas vacancy on the U.S. Supreme Court.

Charles D. Breitel, a Manhattan Republican now serving on the Court of Appeals, still is regarded as a leading possibility for the Supreme Court seat that Fortas resigned.

If Breitel gets it, then Rockefeller will have two vacancies to fill on the state's highest court—and a lot more room for political maneuvering.

Project New Name

That eventuality has projected a new name into the Court of Appeals competition, Harry D. Goldman of Rochester, presiding justice of the State Supreme Court's Appellate Division, Fourth Department.

Sources within the New York GOP and state judicial circles said Goldman would be a cinch for appointment to the Court of Appeals if Breitel were summoned to Washington.

The same sources said the other vacancy then would be awarded to a State Supreme Court justice from the New York City area, either to Howard T. Hogan of Farmingdale, Nassau County, or James D. Hopkins of Armonk, Westchester County.

Several weeks ago, after Keating accepted President Nixon's appointment as ambassador to India, there was general agreement among the governor and his political advisors on the qualifications that Keating's successor should possess.

Religious Balance

First, there was a concession that Rockefeller should choose a Protestant, since Keating's departure from the seven-member tribunal leaves the court with four Catholics and two Jews.

Second, upstate Republicans argued that the appointee should be an upstate man — Rochester-area Republicans especially claimed the vacancy, because that's where Keating lived—on the ground that the remaining two Republicans on the court live in New York City.

That line of reasoning established Supreme Court Justice G. Robert Witmer of Webster, a Rochester suburb, as the leading contender. But it appeared to eliminate Goldman, a Jew, who nevertheless enjoys much warmer relations with the GOP organization.

Goldman, 66, showed himself to be a strong party man while serving as a delegate to the 1967 State Constitutional Convention. Rockefeller elevated him from associate justice to presiding justice of the Appellate Division last year.

After Witmer's name was projected, influential Republicans from other parts of the state began to press for Hogan and Hopkins, as well as Justices John S. Marsh of Niagara Falls and Richard S. Simmons of Rome. All are Protestants.

Need New Yorker

The advocates of Hopkins and Hogan argued that Rockefeller should choose a New York-area man, who could be expected to benefit from a presumably large voter turnout in this year's New York mayoral election when he runs for election to a full, 14-year term in the fall.

Now, the governor's advisers say, he could satisfy both factions if Breitel moves to the U. S. Supreme Court, by awarding one seat to upstater Goldman and the other to Hopkins or Hogan. Thus he would be replacing a Jew and a Protestant with one of each and maintaining the present upstate-downstate balance.

The hangup is uncertainty over Nixon's plans. Fortas had occupied what had long been regarded as the "Jewish seat" on the Supreme Court, and Breitel had been offerred on that basis as a qualified successor. But Nixon recently said that he does not recognize ethnic claims in appointments to the nation's highest court.

Boasting of Success Despite Red Unrest

MOSCOW (UPI)—The Soviets and their allies are boasting of success in their world Communist summit and playing down the dissension of half a dozen Western parties.

The government newspaper Izvestia and Janos Kadar, the Hungarian party leader, set the tone for the praise Thursday, declaring the 75 delegations are in agreement on the "main questions" despite differences over details.

With the conference one week old, nearly two-thirds of the representatives have spoken. Five declared they will not sign a Soviet-endorsed document condemning imperialism and calling for international unity among Communists and left-wing movements.

The dissenters were the British, Swedish, Australian, Italian and Swiss parties. They objected to the wording of the document, fearing it would imply limitations on their national and party sovereignty.

Some of the dissenters disapproved of repeated verbal attacks on Mao Tse-tung and his Red Chinese party and government, and some criticized the Soviet-led invasion of Czechoslovakia last summer.

In an interview with Izvestia Thursday, Kadar said, "The work is going well, and there is full agreement on the main questions associated with the stepping up of the anti-imperliast struggle and the need for strengthening the unity of the Communist and working class movement."

In its own comment on the summit, the government newspaper conceded "The conditions in various countries are different, it is true" but added despite such differences, the representatives are "striving to make cooperation of like-minded persons more effective in the struggle against international imperialism. . ."

At a news conference Thursday, Canada's delegate, William Kashtan, noted that those who objected to Soviet views were given full freedom in voicing their opinions. He said their speeches were published by the conference without deletions and that large excerpts appeared in the Soviet press.

Such reports were never released from previous international Communist conferences in Moscow. Their appearance was an indication of Soviet confidence in winning endorsement of the unity document by an overwhelming majority of the delegates.

Cleaver Assets Frozen Because Of Cuban Trip

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The State Department has frozen the financial assets of Black Panther leader Eldridge Cleaver because of Cleaver's unauthorized travel to Cuba where he has exiled himself.

The announcement confirmed Cleaver is in Cuba, something the State Department had not previously admitted. Cleaver disappeared in November a few days after he was scheduled to go to jail in California for parole violation.

Among the assets which have been frozen are assets and roaylties from Cleaver's best-selling book, "Soul on Ice."

State Department spokesman Robert J. McCloskey said the action was not unprecedented. When asked under what authority the action was taken, he cited the Treasury Department's Cuban assets control regulations adopted under the Trading with the Enemy Act.

McCloskey said he did not know how the department's action would affect Cleaver's wife, Kathleen, who is living in San Francisco and expecting their first child this summer.

Walks Half Mile Without Clothes Before Seizure

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Carlos de Garcia, about 32, was arrested Thursday for indecent exposure. He was totally nude, and witnesses said he strolled a half a mile down Main Street before he was stopped.

Garcia told officers he didn't know why he was walking down Main Street in the nude. Police said he had been drinking.

As the officers were taking Garcia into custody at an intersection, a motorist happened to drive by. He immediately sized up the situation.

The driver slowed to a crawl, hurled a pair of blue jeans at the group and sped off. Garcia donned the trousers and was taken away to the station for booking.

Dear Abby

Sing Out About Gripes

BY Abigail Van Buren

(© 1969 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: We have been married for one year. My husband is 70 and I am 61. I knew when I married him that he was fond of music, but I didn't know that he had to have the music going from the time he opened his eyes in the morning until he closed them at night.

He doesn't hear too well, so he keeps the volume up. Worse yet, our tastes differ. He likes the classics and the old stuff which makes me sad and I like Nat King Cole, Herb Alpert, Dixieland, and Jazz.

This man listens to music while reading, watching TV, and even during mealtime, which means there isn't much conversation between us. I can't do anything while there is music on except liten to the music.

I welcome the chance to get out of the house to get away from that music.

Would you call this a serious conflict? Am I overly sensitive or am I normal? I don't want to upset my husband as he is very considerate in other ways, but I must confess, this is a problem, what is your opioion?

TOO MUCH MUSIC

DEAR TOO: If your husband subjects you to irritating music from dawn until dusk, the "other ways" is which he is "considerate" of you don't count for much. You have a legitimate complaint. Put it to music and sing it to your music lover.

• • •

DEAR ABBY A few weeks ago I went on a sking week-end with my father, uncle, and older brother, and I saw something I still can't believe. I saw my father and uncle with other women, and they certainly weren't acting like married men.

I told my brother how shoked and disgusted I was, and that I was going to tell Mother when I got home, but he said I shouldn't because Dad and Uncle didn't do anything most married men don't do, and besides it wasn't so terrible.

Well, I never said anything to my mother about it, but it still bothers me something awful, I thouugh of talking it over with my father, but I hate him so much I don't even want to look at him.

If all men act like this, I am never getting married. I guess maybe it's true that nothing lasts forever. Please give me your advice.

"DISILLUSIONED AT 17"

DEAR DISILLUSIONED: Don't judge all men by an episode involving your father and uncle. And don't judge THEM until more years and experience have given you added insight and wisdom. There are many marriages in which partners—whether by commitment effort or good luck—are faithful forever. And you can have such a marriage.

• • •

DEAR ABBY: I hope you won't think I'm awful but policemen turn me on How can I meet one.

DOTTY

DEAR DOTTY: That's easy. Drive 50 miles an hour in a 30-mile-an-hour zone. (P.S. But if you don't turn HIM on" he's apt to turn you IN.)

Jean Adams' TEEN FORUM

ADORATION: (Q.) I go to a Catholic school. There is one priest I just simply adore. He is tall, dark, and handsome. Every time he comes near me the love grows stronger and stronger.

I just cannot stop going crazy over him. I would like to ask him to marry me.

I am in tragic need of your advice.—A Reader in Pennsylvania.

(A.) It is quite appropriate for a student to look up to and admire a teacher.

But it is not practical for a girl student to get ideas about dating or marrying a man teacher. When a teacher is a priest it is out of the question.

So, honor and respect this man, but find someone else to love.

HAIR HASSLE: (Q.) I am a boy and I like my hair long. But I always have to have it cut because my mother hates long hair. She thinks I am stupid to let it grow.

I don't take drugs, or smoke, or drink, so I don't see any reason why I have to get my hair cut short. What do you think?—15 and Short-Haired.

(A.) Long hair for boys is the fashion today. It's in good taste if it's clean and neat and not so long that it makes the boy look like a girl.

Long hair is a sensible style trend and should not necessarily be linked with questionable habits or morals.

I believe that in time it will come to be accepted by most parents and school officials. Until then, it—like many new fashions—is going to be controversial.

North and South may have pushed a trifle to get to game. But when you look at both hands you can see the contract is a mighty sound one, provided South knows enough to use the loser-on-loser play in order to make use of dummy's third trump.

East covers his partner's king with his ace of diamonds and returns the suit. West wins the second diamond and continues a third. If South makes a mistake and ruffs in dummy it will be "Katy, bar the door." East will overruff and lead back any card in his hand except the queen of spades and eventually South will lose a club trick in addition to the three tricks already scored against him.

There is no reason for South to make this mistake. He has a sure club loser and can get rid of it on the third diamond.

There is no guarantee that this loser-on-loser play will work this time. Give East one more trump and one less club and he will also discard a club on that third diamond. Then, when South gets around to trying to ruff his third club in dummy, he will be overruffed.

However, trumps break 2-2 this time. South is able to draw trumps with two leads and ruff his club in perfect safety.

In any event the ruff of the third diamond would be plain suicide. The loser-on-loser play would always give South a fighting chance.

Commercials Do a Switch

NEW YORK (AP) — A lot of us hard-core television viewers are in shock and all at sea. It's Josephine, the jolly lady plumber. After all those seasons she has spent shaking brand X on one stain and her favorite scouring powder on the other, Josephine is now all over the tube urging people not to buy the stuff.

It turns out that she is only fooling. It's just her way of telling us that her product has a new formula and to buy it. Josephine has always had luck in finding sinks with just two stains, and it looks as if Josephine's product is still beating brand X by the same easy margin. If those brand X people were smart, they—not Josephine's people—would be busy improving their stuff.

These sudden shifts by old friends including Josephine are among the little dramas that constantly absorb us, the faithful viewers. But it isn't really the sort of thing that you like to talk much about.

About a year ago, old friend Katy Winters was very much in evidence advising us to throw away that personal product she had been raving about for so long. Again, it was simply a way to tell us about a change of formula, but it sort of got one brooding about Katy's loyalty. At a gathering at a friend's house, I electrified a room full of people by asking if they'd heard what had happened to Kay Winters.

"Katy who?" asked my host. I explained. After that people seemed to avoid me, and my hostess brought me a cup of black coffee.

However, some other people are concerned about Katy and Josephine, saying this gambit of advising people not to buy is a curious sales device.

They overlook the surprise element of the commercials. And another advantage both sales people enjoy—product identification.

While I was pretty bored after seeing over and over those comedy commercials for a long cigarette that kept getting caught inadvertantly in elevator doors and popping balloons, I know which of a welter of long cigarettes it was advertising.

On the other hand, this identity is missing in one of my favorite commercials. It shows a hostess at a party being assaulted by a succession of rude strangers reminding her that her coffee is inferior, her breath is bad and her blouse is not really white. It's a bright satire on other commercials, but I don't remember what the spot is really trying to sell.

Red Shellings Kill 26 South Vietnamese

SAIGON (UPI)—Communist shellings of South Vietnam's second and third biggest cities and other population centers killed 26 South Vietnamese and wounded 41 overnight, military spokesmen said today.

A total of 17 towns and Allied military bases came under rocket or mortar attack late Tursday and early today—fewest attacks since the Communists began their latest shelling offensive the night of June 5.

With no major ground battling reported, the U.S. command said 38 Soviet-made rockets slammed into the Bien Hoa military complex North of Saigon, site of one of the major U.S. airbases in Vietnam.

10 Killed

Military sources said 10 South Vietnamese soldiers were killed and 13 wounded in the attack 14 miles from Saigon.

At Da Nang, five rockets hit a U.S. Navy compound, causing no damage or casualties, but a sixth fell short into a shantytown, killing 10 Vietnamese civilians and wounding 12, war communiques said.

In Hue, the nation's third biggest city after Saigon and Da Nang, terrorists fired three antitank rockets into a police station and three policemen were killed. The terrorists escaped.

A 20-round mortar attack into the district town at Duc Pho in the Central Highlands killed three civilians and wounded 12. Headquarters said 60 per cent of the village was damaged in the attack and resulting fire.

The American Command in addition reported two new Communist violations of the border Demilitarized Zone (DMZ) Thursday, drawing U.S. counterfire that killed five Communists and destroyed 19 bunkers.

Both incidents occurred in the southern half of the zone above Allied bases at Gio linh near the South China Sea coast and the rockpile further inland. No U.S. casualties were reported.

U.S. B52 bombers in seven raids overnight dropped their 500- and 750-pound bombs on the northern coast, 60 miles northwest of Saigon, and on infiltration corridors from Cambodia to the capital.

Another aerial weapon in the Allied arsenal, helicopter gunships, accounted for 35 Viet Cong and North Vietnamese killed Thursday military spokesmen said. Fifteen of the guerrillas died near Katum on the Cambodian border, with 20 others dead near Dak To in the highlands.

U.S. Marines sweeping the flatlands on the northern coast found bodies of 24 North Vietnamese spokesmen said had been killed in air and artillery strikes three days ago.

Marine, 15, Viet Victim

NEW YORK (UPI)— Last week, a young Marine in Vietnam wrote his family in Brooklyn, "I'm fine and don't have any holes in me yet." Wednesday, the family received a telegram—Pfc. Dan Bullock, only 15, died Saturday of "multiple wounds to the body from small arms fire."

He was the youngest American killed in the Vietnam War.

Bullock lied about his age when he joined the Marines in September, telling recruiters he was born Dec. 21, 1949, in Goldsboro, N.C. The date and the place were correct, but the true year of his birth was 1953. He couldn't wait to get away from the railroad flat in a Brooklyn tenement where he had grown up.

"He wanted to be a pilot at first, a policeman and then a Marine," Bullock's father, Brother, said Thursday. "I told him over and over again that he could not do anything until he got some schooling. He said this was the quickest way to get an education.

"That goddamn war!"

Soviets Recognize Cong Provisionals

MOSCOW (UPI)—The Soviet Union today granted diplomatic recognition to the "provisional revolutionary government" set up by the Viet Cong to oppose the Saigon regime in South Vietnam.

It brought to eight the number of nations — mostly Communist that have recognized the government announced three days ago.

"The Soviet government . . . with full sympathy for the heroic struggle of the Vietnamese people recognized the revolutionary government of the Republic of South Vietnam," the Tass announcement said.

Soviet recognition was in effect a formality, for the Kremlin had had full diplomatic relations with the National Liberation Front (NLF), which the new provisional government replaced.

Tass said Soviet Premier Alexei N. Kosygin received the chief of the NLF mission in Moscow, Dang Quang Minh, and informed him of the Soviet decision. Minh was expected to continue as the Viet Cong ambassador.

The new provisional government had asked for diplomatic recognition from the Soviets, who supply Viet Cong and North Vietnamese troops with much of their weaponry.

Tass's announcement came during the world Communist summit meeting which stressed unity, and the recognition was in line with the theme of the meeting.

Since its formation was announced, North Vietnam, East Germany, Poland, Cuba, Syria, Yugoslavia, Algeria and now the Soviet Union have recognized the new provisional government.

Goldwater Sued

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Rep. Barry Goldwater Jr., R-Calif., was sued for $27,500 damages Wednesday by a woman with whom he was involved in an automobile collision on the Hollywood Freeway. Mrs. Laulina Jansen, a waitress, claimed Goldwater was responsible for the accident Dec. 20. She sought medical, legal and repair costs in addition to personal damages. Goldwater, 30, won his congressional seat in a runoff election in the 27th District last month.
